Republicans Retain Control Of Conclave To Arrange Tax Bill

Senate Appoints Three G. O. P. Members and Two Democrats on Committee

SIMMONS ASKS PROTECTION

Ten Days or Two Weeks Will Be Required to Iron Out Differences

By Associated Press

Washington, D. C.—Republicans retained control of the conference on the tax reduction bill through appointment Tuesday by the senate of three Republicans and two Democrats, the same ratio as fixed by the house.

Pointing out the bill as passed by the senate was modeled on the Democratic program, the main provisions of which had been opposed by the Republican organization, Senator Simmons, North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, had suggested the appointment of three Democrats and two Republicans.

Senator Simmons said he would accept the membership named by the senate but if the Democratic sections in the bill were not protected he would ask for discharge of the senate conferees and appointment of a Democratic majority.

MEASURE FACES VETO

These provisions consist principally of the substitute corporation tax imposing a levy on undistributed profits ,the Simmons committee tax schedule, providing for a maximum surtax of 40 per cent and a proposal for full publicity of tax returns. Unless these proposals are modified, administration leaders have declared the measure faces a veto.

The following were named as conferees by the senate:

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee; Senator McLean, Connecticut, and Curtis, Kansas, Republican; and Simmons, North Carolina and Jones, New Mexico Democrats, ranking Democratic members on the finance committee.

Chairman Smoot announced the first meeting of the conferees would be held Wednesday. About ten days or two weeks are expected to be consumed in ironing out differences between the house and senate.

FOND DU LAC RAILWAY MAN FINED FOR SLANDER

By Associated Press

Fond du Lac—George Williams, a railroad man, was fined $50 in circuit court here late Monday when he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of criminal slander preferred by James Murray, district attorney. Williams made full retraction for his remarks, which he said were made in the heat of passion and arose from continued family difficulties.

Fight Over Measures To Relieve Farmers Delays Adjournment

McNary-Haugen Bill Has Right of Way But Outlook for Its Passage Is Extremely Dull.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1924 by the Post Pub. Co.

Washington, D. C.—Congress will not adjourn without passing some kind of agricultural legislation and the question of which of the many bills presented shall be approved is becoming more complicated every day.

The McNary-Haugen bill has the right-of-way. A vote on it will be forced shortly and until that measure is disposed of all other proposals must wait. But the outlook for the McNary-Haugen bill's passage is not bright. The opposition to it is growing largely because when all is said and done it is an experimental measure and the opponents of it say they do not think $200,000,000 should be appropriated at this time for anything which cannot be proved of direct benefit to the nation as a whole. The bill has the support of the department of agriculture but it has not yet won the approval of President Coolidge. Its provisions whereby the price of wheat would be raised arbitrarily on a basis which bears a constant relation to the fluctuating prices of other commodities are not accepted as workable by the president, but his opposition has not been put on that ground. He is not in favor of $200,000,000 appropriations when there is divided opinion as to the merit of the plan itself among farm interests.

SIMPLER BILL FAILED

The Norbeck-Burtness bill which would have provided funds for diversified farming was a much simpler bill but it failed in the senate. The same lineup of conservatives among Republicans and Democrats will be sufficient to defeat McNary-Haugen bill which is not being supported by any party but will have to run the gauntlet of bi-partisan opposition.

With the McNary-Haugen bill out of the way, the administration will face the responsibility of passing some other agricultural bill. The measures which are attracting most attention as possible substitutes for the McNary-Haugen bill though differing materially in principle from it are the Curtis-Aswell and the Capper-Williams bills. Both are more or less along the same line but they have important differences in the control and power to be vested in the governing commission which is to coordinate the marketing activities of the farmer.

CONGRESS IS DOUBTFUL

The Curtis-Aswell bill calls for less connection on the whole between the government and the marketing of products than the Capper-Williams measure. At this writing, however, it is not apparent which congress will prefer, for the situation that will follow the failure of the McNary-Haugen bill is not easy to determine. Its proponents are in earnest about the bill and will not give up the fight without a struggle, as there are some sections of the country which are so anxious for the passage of the bill that a systematic campaign for its endorsement has been carried on to influence senators and representatives to vote for it. Most of the farm organizations favor it, though there are rumors that the directors here did not like it originally and were compelled to support it by pressure from farm districts. The farm bloc is lining up strongly for it but that body was unable to put the Norbeck-Burtness bill through and many find the same snag this time.

MADISON OFFICER KILLS STUDENT OF STATE UNIVERSITY

Boy Is Shot Dead While Walking in Rear of Patrolman's Residence

By Associated Press

Madison—Peter M. Posepny, 21, junior at the University of Wisconsin, is dead as result of being shot late Monday night by Patrick J. Powers, Madison patrolman, in the rear of the latters residence. The dead student's home is Two Rivers.

Powers fired upon the student, according to his statement, following discovery of the boy at the rear of his home. He stated he discovered someone loitering about the house and instituted an investigation. The patrolman stated further that when the boy started toward him, he shot intending to shoot into the air. The bullet entered the boy's skull above the ear. Fear of an attack from the the stranger was given by Powers as his cause for firing.

Police and university officials have instituted an investigation of the affair.

Young Posepny is declared by his roomate to have left his rooming house early Monday night for a theatre. He was identified by documents on his person and by friends. Parents of the boy at Two Rivers have been notified.

Posepny was characterized by his roommate and fellow student as being a hard working and likeable young man. He worked his way through the university for two years and is declared to have been a student of high ranking scholastically.

The dead student is said to have been somewhat timid but was popular among his fellow students. He was a member of the university wrestling squad and engaged in several other activities. Much of the evenings he spent at his room studying and working, according to L. F. Fischer, a student from Two Rivers and a roommate of Posepny.

Young Posepny left his room early in the evening with a group of students to go to a show, Fischer said. He stated he knew no reason why the students would be prowling about in the vicinity of the Powers home, declaring that he was in a good frame of mind and apparently normal.

NOTED BUILDER OF BRIDGES IS DEAD

Former Wisconsin Engineer Who Built Manhattan Bridge Passes

New York—Edward F. Terry, builder of the Manhattan bridge across the East river here and of five bridges across the Mississippi river, is dead at his home in Riverdale. He died at the age of 76. He leaves a widow, Rebecca Allie of St. Paul, Minn., and a son.

Mr. Terry, who was born on a farm near Concord, N. Y., was brought up in Wisconsin where he first obtained a job as a riveter. He was a member of the firm of Terry, Tench and Co., which built numerous bridges in different parts of the country and large sections of the New York subway and Boston elevated railroads.

During the war he formed the Terry Shipbuilding corporation of Savannah, Ga., and had his headquarters in that city where he directed four thousand men building ships for the government.

PACT ENDS WAR IN THEATRICAL RANKS

By Associated Press

New York—Peace between the Actor's Equity association and 70 per cent of the theatrical managers and producers of the country was assured Tuesday through an agreement between Equity and the newly formed Managers Protective association.

This agreement, reached Monday, and which is for a period of ten years provides that future theatrical casts shall be composed of at least 80 per cent Equity members and that all non-Equity members in a cast shall pay to Equity a sum equal to the dues of that association which Equity may dispose of as it sees fit. This money, it is understood, will be devoted to charitable work in the theatrical profession.

Arbitration boards are also provided for in the agreement and the Equity agrees not to interfere in the matter of salaries paid to actors except to stipulate the minimum amount.

NON-SUIT GRANTED IN ALLIS DIVORCE

By Associated Press

Milwaukee—A motion for non-suit was granted Tuesday as against seven of ten defendants in the trial of the case of Mrs. Amber Allis, against members of her former husband's family for alleged conspiracy to alienate h's affections. The court sustained the contention of defendant counsel on the ground there was insufficient evidence submitted to connect them with conspiracy.

Judge Gustav Gehrz continued to hear arguments for dismissal as against the remaining defendants.

ROBBERS MAKE RICH HAUL IN DAKOTA BANK

Wahpeton, N. D. — Three robbers broke into the State Bank of Abercrombie about 12 miles north of here early Tuesday morning, demolished the safe and safety deposit boxes and escaped with $5,000 in cash, $4,250 in Liberty bonds and an undetermined amount of collateral.

IMPROVEMENTS IN PARK HIGHWAYS AUTHORIZED

By Associated Press

Madison—Improvements in highways in state parks to cost approximately $25,000 were approved Tuesday by the state highway commission. Improvements costing $10,000 will be made at the Door-co park, $12,000 at the Interstate park and $2,500 at the Devil's Lake park. The commission also set hearings on proposed changes in the Lake Mills-Waterloo highway and the Merrimac ferry, involving Columbia and Sauk-cos.

NEW QUARREL REOPENS PROBE OF OIL FRAUDS

Senator Spencer Attempts to Question Assistant Secretary of Interior

By Associated Press

Washington, D. C.—Investigation of the naval reserve leases was resumed Tuesday by the senate oil committee with another quarrel among committee members.

With Assistant Secretary Finney of the interior department on the stand, Senator Spencer, Republican of Missouri, sought to examine him on the basis of a statement put into a house hearing some weeks ago by Edwin Denby, while secretary of the navy. Senator Adams, Democrat of Colorado, protested and asked that a quorum of the committee be summoned. Chairman Ladd interjected that the matter Senator Spencer wanted to take up had twice been before the committee and declared the Missouri senator was not bringing it in "in the proper way."

"The action of the senator in attempting to put in this matter," Senator Adams added, "is an outrageous abuse of the committee."

No quorum appearing, Senator Spencer turned to another line of questioning.

Mr. Spencer said it was his purpose to show that the facilities of the interior department to handle the reserves was so much better than those of the navy department as to warrant their transfer.

Senator Walsh, the prosecutor of the committee, protested against some of the questions asked Finney, and there was another hot argument with Senator Spencer insisting he should be permitted to conduct the examination without interruption.

U. S. FLIERS READY FOR LONGEST JUMP

Major Martin and His Mechanic Will Rejoin Companions in India

By Associated Press

Cordova, Alaska—With calm weather forecast for Tuesday at Atka island, where three United States Army cruisers have been since Thursday after flying from Atka island, it was expected that the aviators Tuesday would hasten preparations for the next jump Wednesday of their world encircling flight, an 873-mile trip to Paramashiru island, in the Kurile group, Japan.

Gales prevented the men from inspecting, repairing an overhauling the machines at Attu up to this time. Everything will be made as nearly perfect for the longest hop of the 27,000-mile trip.

Meanwhile Major Frederick L. Martin, commander of the expedition, and his mechanic Staff Sergeant Alva L. Harvey who crashed into a mountain 100 miles northwest of Chignik, April 30, and who reached Port Moller on the Bering seacoast May 3, were to leave Tuesday aboard either the United States Coastguard cutter Algonquin, or the Pacific-American Fisheries vessel Catherine, enroute to Seattle and Washington, D. C.

From the latter place the men are expected to proceed for India, where Major Martin will again assume charge of the squadron.

DETROIT LAWYER ESCAPES KIDNAPING PROSECUTION

By Associated Press

Detroit, Mich. — Local authorities were advised Tuesday by the city marshal of Saco, Me., that Albert C. Doyle, Detroit attorney, would not be prosecuted on a charge of assisting in the kidnaping of nine-year-old Jean Thompson last Friday.

Doyle arrested here on Sunday as he stepped from a train from Boston was released on a writ of habeas corpus after being in custody about an hour. It is expected the charge against him will be dismissed when he appears in circuit court on the habeas corpus writ.

Motion Picture Will Show Happiness Of Home Owning

The biggest industry in this country is not steel, not automobiles, not motion pictures—it is housekeeping. Women are managers of this gigantic industry and it is in their power to make it or break it.

In spite of the magnitude of the industry, of the million of dollars that are spent in maintaining it, it is the least efficient and the most laborous of occupations. Less good business sense is used in operating the business of housekeeping than in almost any other work.

And the fault is not the women's. It is the fault, very largely, of the men who provide the means for operating the home. Either because of carelessness, stubbornness or neglect, housekeeping is made a tremendous labor and expense when it might be a joy.

One of the greatest improvements in the industry of housekeeping is home ownership and to stimulate interest in "Own Your Home," the week of May 26 to 31 has been designated as "Own Your Home Week." Mayor John Goodland, the chamber of commerce and Appleton Advertising club have endorsed the movement and it is proposed to so stimulate interest in home building that Appleton will become a city of home owners.

One of the features of this week will be the showing of a motion picture, "The Great Idea," at the Elite theater on May 26, 27 and 28, as part of the regular program. This picture tells an interesting story of how a young couple, cooped up for years in a stuffy apartment, found new happiness and renewed youth in a home of their own. It pictures the problems which beset the home builder and tells how they may be solved. "The world's most perfect home," is described in detail in this picture.

Every person who contemplates building a home sometime in his life should see this picture. He will learn much that will be of advantage to him.

Congressman J. W. Langley of Kentucky Monday was found guilty by a federal court of conspiring to sell and transport liquor. His attornies have announced they will appeal his case.

EX-MAYOR IS HELD AS BANK ROBBER IN SAN DIEGO, CALIF.

St. Joseph Elks Seek to Break Open Strong Box Containing Fund

By Associated Press

San Diego, Calif.—Michigan friends are ready and willing to come to the aid of A. R. Morford, ex-mayor of St. Joseph, Mich., held here as a confessed bank robber who successfully held up a Thirtieth-st bank last Saturday when he got away with $3000 in currency, according to a telegram from Benton Harbor, where Morford has a wide acquaintance. The telegram also stated that Mrs. Morford is willing to aid him.

St. Joseph Mich. — Arrangements are being made to forcibly open a safety deposit box of A. R. Morford, former mayor, under arrest in San Diego, Calif., in connection with the robbery of a bank there. Morford was treasurer of the Elks lodge here until Jan. 1.

Since his term expired, the new treasurer has not been able to obtain keys to the safety box where between $25,000 and $35,000 worth of bonds belonging to the lodge are supposed to be under Morford's protection.

Friends of the former mayor are planning to raise a defense fund for him and said Monday night that they had asked San Diego authorities to submit Morford to a lunacy test.

STILL A CHANCE TO CLEAN UP PREMISES

Residents who have not yet disposed of their rubbish and desire to take advantage of the offer of the city to cart away the rubbish free of charge still have time to deposit the refuse in containers and place them at the street curbs, provided however, the city wagons have not yet passed down that street.

That was the announcement of R. M. Connelly, city street commissioner, Tuesday morning. The department does not object to residents' placing the rubbish out at the curbs during the "pickup" period, but warns every one that the city wagons will make but one trip on each street. If the trucks have already passed down that street, residents will have to take some other means of having their rubbish hauled away.

The work of hauling away the rubbish has been divided between the two crews of David Barry and John Betz, street department superintendents. Two extra trucks have been hired for the work.

LANGLEY WILL APPEAL FROM JURY VERDICT

Kentucky Congressman Is Found Guilty on Rum Conspiracy Charge

By Associated Press

Covington, Ky.—Attorneys representing Congressman J. W. Langley, Kentucky, who was found guilty by a jury in federal court here of conspiring to sell and transport liquor, appeared before Judge Cochran Tuesday and announced that they would appeal his case. Judge Cochran gave them until 1 o'clock Tuesday to prepare their motion.

Attornies for Milton M. Lipschutz, Philadelphia, co-defendant with Langley, who likewise was found guilty, also announced their intention of appealing from the verdict.

It is expected that Judge Cochran will immediately pass upon the motions, and if they are overruled, will pass sentences.

The verdict of guilty was returned against Langley after the jury had deliberated for more than three hours. He was convicted of using his influence to secure the issuance of illegal liquor permits for the withdrawal and transportation of 2,400 cases of whisky from the Duke of Anderson distillery, near Lawrenceburg, Ky., to Philadelphia, Pa.

Albert F. Slater, former clerk in the office of the federal prohibition director's office in Philadelphia, tried with Langley and Lpischutz, will stand trial again on the charge of issuing the permit, the jury disagreeing in his case.

Washington, D. C.—The case of Representative Langley, Republican, Kentucky, who was found guilty Monday by a federal court in Kentucky of conspiracy in whiskey transactions, was taken up Tuesday by the house committee named to investigate the charges against him.

Chairman Burton refused to predict what action might be taken by the committee which also has been looking into charges against Representative Zihlman, Republican, Maryland.

He pointed out that Langley's appeal must be passed on before the court charges against him could be considered definitely concluded.

Pending the appeal, Mr. Burton said he understood Langley would not participate in any of his duties as a house member, and that temporarily he had turned over to Representative Elliott, Republican, Indiana, the chairmanship of the public buildings committee.

A formal report on the Zihlman case, Mr. Burton said, would be made in the near future.

HOUSE OF DAVID DENIES FRAUDS

Arguments Made for and Against Reversal of Verdict Against Colony

By Associated Press

Cincinnati, O. — Arguments were made to the United States Circuit Court of appeals here Tuesday for and against the reversal of the verdict against the Israelelite House of David, Benton Harbor, Mich., in favor of John W. Hansel and his wife, formerly of Nashville, Tenn., who were members of the order. They obtained a verdict for $24,087 on their claim that they had given up all their holdings when entering the order and received nothing for their work during the time they were members.

Attorney W. J. Barnard, Paw Paw, Mich., appeared for a reversal on behalf of the order and Benjamin Purnell and his wife, heads of the organization, while Judge H. T. Dewhirst with the flowing hair and beard which marks the members of the House of David, appeared with him. They argued that Hansel and his wife had to sign an agreement to waive all property rights and claims for labor when they entered the religious sect.

Denial was made that there was any immorality in the colony or that any fraud had been perpetrated.

MADISON MAN IS HELD FOR DEATH

By Associated Press

Madison—Camelo Oliva, proprietor of a soft drink parlor, was under arrest Tuesday by order of District Attorney T. G. Lewis in connection with the death here May 4, of Stanley Rosenahl, 18, University of Wisconsin student from Chicago. Oliva is held on charges of possessing and selling intoxicating liquor.

The soft drink operator was released on bond when he pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Rosenthal died suddenly after he is said to have been a member of a party of students which bought liquor in the foreign section.

Poincare And Cabinet Will Resign June 4

Nine Faith Healers Die Of Diphtheria

By Associated Press

Lebanon, Pa.—Having forcibly administered antitoxin to members of the Faith Tabernacle, a cult of faith curers, local health authorities Tuesday were hopeful of checking the spread of diphtheria which in the last three weeks has caused the death of nine persons. All the victims were members of families of the Faith Tabernacle and all, the authorities declared, had been denied medical attention.

Five of the deaths occurred in the family of Mrs. Charles Roth, her husband and four children dying since April 21. One of the children died Monday while the funeral of another was being held. Until Monday night, the health officials said, Mrs Roth steadfastly had refused medical treatment for her family. They finally persuaded her to permit herself and her four surviving children to be inoculated. She would not give verbal consent to the treatment, but submitted without protest. Antitoxin was forcibly administered to other members of the cult including the family of Edwin Winterborne, Pastor of Faith Tabernacle whose youngest son is ill with diphtheria.

TWO OF THREE MOTOR COPS ARE NAMED BY BOARD

Bogan and Kaufman Will Patrol Roads—Award Bridge Contract

Two of the three motorcycle officers who will patrol the county roads this summer were appointed by the county highway committee it its meeting Monday afternoon. They are Wilbur Bogan of Little Chute and Allen Kaufman of Dale.

The third officer, probably will be appointed today, since the highway committee is meeting again to go on a tour of inspection of county roads. There were 12 applicants for the jobs. Wilbur Bogan is the first officer to be appointed for that work in this county and is now serving his third summer.

Bids were opened for the construction of the Hietpas bridge in the town of Vandenbroek, and the contract was awarded to Charles Appleton, Route 3, Kaukauna, on his price of $17.50 per cubic yard of concrete, which will amount to about $615.

Other bidders were Wunderlich & Ort, Greenville, $25.80; Henry Sprister, Appleton, $20.70; Simpson and Parker, Appleton, $19.40; John Scholl, Appleton $24.25; Patrick Garvey, West DePere, $24; Robert Hann, Appleton, $21; William Sweeny, DePere, $16.06.

It was decided that the county and town aid road work as well as the graveling projects determined upon last November will be performed as usual by the county day force, rather than by contract.

Plans and specifications prepared by the city engineer of Appleton for the paving of Lemnwah-st, a part of highway 15, were accepted by the committee.

RAGING POTOMAC INUNDATES CITY

By Associated Press

Hagerstown, Md.—The worst flood in a decade swept over Williamsport, Md., Tuesday, paralyzing industry and destroying hundreds of thousands of dollars in property. It sent residents in the lower part of the town fleeing for their lives.

At noon the Potomac was more than 30 feet above normal and continued to rise at the rate of five inches an hour. Traffic over the Western Maryland railway at Williamsport was suspended.

Premier and Ministers Offer Resignations in Formal Council Monday

RADICALS ARE VICTORIOUS

Ousted Government Chooses Earliest Possible Date to Quit Posts

By Associated Press

Paris—The Poincare cabinet, meeting Monday morning, decided to hand in its resignation, effective June 4.

The decision was taken at a formal council of ministers, held in the Elysee palace under the chairmanship of President Millerand.

The cabinet deliberated an hour and a quarter on the question. Whether it would be possible to resign immediately. It was finally decided it would not be according to precedent to open a ministerial crisis before the new chamber had even assembled and before the various groups had organized and politics had been taken with reference to a governmental combination. The ministers all agreed however, that they could in the meantime only undertake to care for current business in their departments leaving all problems involving questions of policy for their successors.

VOTE FORCES ACTION

The premier interpreted the majority given to the parties of the left in Sunday's parliamentary elections as a repudiation of his government and forthwith decided to resign. His decision was ratified at the council of ministers held Monday in the palace of the Elysee.

The new chamber of deputies will meet on June 2, elect its president, officials and secretaries and then adjourn until June 4, when the new president will deliver the opening address. The first official business transacted will be when M. Poincare reads his declaration of resignation.

June 4 was the earliest constitutional date the government could have chosen to resign.

ATTORNIES MEET TO DISCUSS TAX

County Officials Will Discuss Law Concerning Bank Revenues

By Associated Press

Madison—A conference of district attorneys of a number of Wisconsin counties has been called here for Wednesday with the state tax commission to discuss the state law levying taxes on state and national bank stock, it was announced Tuesday. The commission will obtain views of district attorneys on the tax question before making its final decision on taxes for this year.

More than a million dollars would be levied against income of banks under existing state laws which are being attacked in state and federal courts in several counties. An agreed test case of the bank tax law may be one of the outcomes of the conference here Wednesday.

PLAN CHANGES IN SCHOOL SYSTEMS

Madison—Revision of the educational system of state penal and charitable institutions for children so to furnish the same educational opportunities as offered in public schools is planned by the state board of control in the near future, it was revealed Tuesday by Mrs. Margaret Hutton Abels, member of the control board, speaking before the League of Women Voters convention here.

As the first step in the movement, a survey of the state home for dependent children at Sparta has been ordered by the department of education and several instructors will be added to the staff this fall. Other institutions will be taken up immediately, it was stated.

Mrs. Abels also announced that Dr. W. F. Lorenz, chairman of the board of control, is working out a plan for medical care of children in state institutions.

SENATE APPROVES BURSUM BILL VETO

Washington, D. C.—President Coolidge's veto of the Bursum pension bill was sustained Tuesday by the senate. The action crowned with success the first attempt of Mr. Coolidge to block legislation by exercise of the veto power.

Like President Harding, he disapproved the bill because of the expense involved. The measure would have granted pension increases to the veterans of several wars. The vote to override was 53 to 28, one vote less than the two thirds required.

BOTH PARTIES IN ACCIDENT SUE TO RECOVER DAMAGES

Appleton Man Asks for $5,000 and Defendant Counter-Claims for $500

A damage suit for $5,000 instituted by Martin H. Eickoff, 946 Spring-st, vs. H. M. Williams and son Durward Williams of Kimberly, was commenced before a jury in municipal court Tuesday morning, with Attorney A. H. Krugmeier representing the plaintiff and Bradford and Bradford representing the defendant.

The suit arose out of a collision between Eickoff's Chevrolet sedan and Williams' Dodge truck which was driven by Durward Williams. The accident occurred on Dec. 9 on state trunk highway 18. Both vehicles were damaged and injuries were inflicted upon the plaintiff and H. M. Williams, it is asserted.

Eickoff complained that the defendants were driving east on the wrong side of the road, while he was driving westward on the right side, as the collision took place.

This is denied by the defendants who are asking for $500 in their counterclaim. Their reply is that Eickoff was on the left side of the road, while the defendants were driving on the righ side. Both parties charge each other with negligence and reckless driving and exceeding the speed limits.

MORE THAN 500 AT 1ST WARD EXHIBIT

Pupils Show Progress of Banking by Means of Graphic Charts

Progress which pupils have made during the year in their banking plan formed a part of the exhibits of classwork shown at the First ward school Monday afternoon and evening. The attendance was between 500 and 600, despite the rain which fell all evening.

Graphs were used to show the extent to which saving is being practiced in the various grades. An arithmetic class figured out the percentages and another class prepared the charts on which the curves indicate the progress from month to month. Graphs showing the development in other branches of study also were on the walls in some of the rooms.

The work done by the children was admired by the parents. Displays of art were unusually attractive and not only showed the skill of some of the pupils, but indicated how art study is correlated with other studies.

Manual training and sewing displays were quite complete. Some of the articles were quite difficult to produce but were well done. Themes, penmanship and other subjects also were included in the exhibition.

ONE MAN IS OWNER OF ENTIRE TOWN; HAS BUSY CAREER

Wilson, Ark., Has Grown To 2,000 Population Since Owner Founded It

By Associated Press

Wilson, Ark.—What's Robert E. Lee Wilson going to do with his one-man town?

It's getting to be a complex problem, not only here in Wilson, Mississippi county, but for grizzled pioneers, railroad magnates, bankers in surrounding towns and financiers in St. Louis, Little Rock, Memphis and Chicago who wonder just what Lee Wilson, now 61, is going to do with a fast-growing town of 2,000 population and which he owns—lots, stock and barrel.

Like some feudal land baron of old, this man owns everything in sight on a vast expanse of nearly 50,000 acres. It's all his, personally. The only thing he doesn't own in Wilson is a little yellow depot and a few hundred yards of steel rail, the property of the Frisco Railway.

But even the Frisco system hasn't anything on Mr. Wilson. He operates his own little railroad, runs it to suit himself, and it's 150 miles long. They call it the Jonesboro, Lake City & Eastern Railroad, and it links up Wilson with Jonesboro and Blytheville, Ark.

ONE U. S. OFFICIAL

But even a multi-millionaire, such as Wilson, with all his business acumen, can't be expected to fill the shoes of a mayor, the chief of police, the banker, the hotel proprietor, the merchant, the preacher, the justice of the peace and all the other shoes incident to the rule, control a hustling town like Wilson.

There's only one government official in town—the postmaster. The tax collector drops around once a year, but it's easy to collect taxes in Wilson. He writes out a memorandum for Mr. Wilson and Mr. Wilson writes out a check for Mr. Tax Collector—and the ordeal is over.

There are 249 residences in Wilson and Mr. Wilson owns them all.

His property, including the town proper, extends 27 miles in length one way, eight miles another and then winds along the Mississippi river.

Here is some of the property which Wilson owns personally, including the town of Wilson and the thousands of acres surrounding it:

Eighteen plantations that will produce this year 5500 acres of cotton. There are 5500 acres planted in corn. The cotton is produced from 5000 acres. He has 1200 acres in wheat and 500 acres in alfalfa.

Thousands of acres of virgin timber.

BOX FACTORY

A sawmill that represents an investment of $250,000.

A mill that produces 200 barrels of flour and meal daily.

A $125,000 box factory.

An eight-gin stand, electrically driven, which cost him $40,000 and has a capacity of 20 bales daily.

A model ice plant.

The Bank of Wilson, with a capital of $25,000 and a surplus of nearly $35,000.

A department store, where one can buy anything from a toothpick to a flivver.

A modern school structure Mr. Wilson built at a cost of $200,000. He also set aside 100 acres of land surrounding the building. There is an annual deficit of $10,000 in the maintenance of this school with its staff of 20 teachers, but a check from Mr. Wilson's secretary wipes out the deficit without argument.

A drug store, garage and filling station, a church edifice, a hotel, a cafe, blacksmith shop and meat market.

A Community Center building.

Waterworks plant.

Electric light and power plant.

Wilson rents from himself. He pays himself $45 per month for his nine-room house and that's the maximum rent paid by any citizen of Wilson. The scale of rents run from $12.50 to $27.50 per month, according to the size home.

Funny thing, nobody can live in Wilson without renting from Mr. Wilson, and nobody can work in Wilson without working for Mr. Wilson.

Wilson isn't very talkative with strangers. But he's dynamic in action and he doesn't employ laggards.

PICK 'DEVIL DOG' TO LEAD CLEANUP OF PHILADELPHIA

Gen. Butler Will Make Police Enforce Law And Drive Out Booze

Philadelphia —; Philadelphia has called on the United States Marine Corps to clean up the town.

Mayor-elect W. Freeland Kendrick dumbfounded the boss politicians and the public of Philadelphia by the appointment of General Smedley D. Butler to hold the position of director of public safety in his cabinet.

But Kendrick feels that he is doing nothing more than keeping his pre-election pledges to the people of Philadelphia—something in itself that is rather unusual in a politician.

"I don't see why any surprise should be felt over the appointment of General Butler," he says.

"The people of Philadelphia have seen fit to give me the largest plurality ever given a mayor in Philadelphia.

"In return I am going to try and give them the best government they ever have had.

"Not the best government in its ordinarily understood meaning — but government, efficient, business-like and economical.

"That is why I have appointed General Butler to the post of Director of Public Safety.

He is peculiarly fitted for the task.

"Our investigations of the police force have shown us that the expenses of the department have just about doubled in the past seven or eight years; yet the increase of crime has more than kept pace with the increase in expenses.

"General Butler and myself both feel that the 4500 men now doing duty on the police force, can, if properly organized, more than cope with the law violators.

"At present I understand that about 25 per cent of the force are out of uniform, on detail. The first step will be to put the bulk of these men back in uniform where they belong.

"Every policeman will find that he is absolutely backed up by General Butler and myself in the performance of his duty in enforcing the law. No favors are to be shown or tolerated.

So bad is the situation that the navy maintains an armed provost marshall guard at certain points to protect sailors and marines against the vendors of the poisonous products that are retailed as liquor.

SCHUETTER ASKS $1,200 FOR LAND TO WIDEN ALLEY

Council Committee Told Traction Company May Donate Property

The common council to which was referred the widening of the alley in block 28 to 16 feet took up the matter Tuesday evening with A. K. Ellis, general manager of Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat & Power company, and with Henry Schuetter, owners of property on the alley.

Mr. Ellis not only indorsed the proposition of widening the alley but said he felt confident his company will not only donate the necessary strip of land, but will remove the portion of the building now occupying it. He said he felt the increased valuation of the property will offset the donation.

Henry Schuetter considered his strip of land worth $2,000 but finally offered it to the city for $1,200. This price was considered too high and it is probable it will be condemned.

With the exception of the land at each end of the alley the rest of the property has been donated.

DR. BENTON MOVES TO OFFICE IN SPECTOR-BLDG

Dr. Joseph L. Benton has moved his offices from the second floor of the Arcade building, where he occupied a suite of offices with Dr. William N. Moore, to the second floor of the Spector building at the corner of Appleton-st and College-ave. He planned to move his office furniture on Tuesday and be ready to meet his patients in his new location Wednesday.

INSPECT RURAL MAIL ROUTES TO IMPROVE SERVICE

Assistant Postmaster Begins Semi-annual Checkup of Carriers' Work

The semi-annual inspection of rural routes leading out of Appleton postoffice was commenced on Monday morning. The inspection this year will be conducted by Herman J. Franck, assistant postmaster. The first route traveled over was Route No. 1, over which Joseph Tennie, Jr., carries mail.

Mr. Franck will gather data for the United States postal department on irregularities in postal conditions of the routes. He will also investigate as to what has been done in the way of improvement since the last inspection last fall.

One of the principal requirements insisted upon by the United States postal department this year is that both mail boxes and posts be painted white, and that the name of the patron be painted on the box in large neat, black letters. The old Corbin mail boxes, flat in shape and having a slanting cover above, have been condemned, and if any of the boxes are found on any of the routes, they will be ordered removed. A number of the farmers have installed the large, roomy boxes recommended by the department, especially where the partons receive a large quantity of parcel post. Road conditions also will be inspected.

The postal officials sympathize with those rural patrons who suffer the misfortune of having their mail boxes knocked down occasionally by reckless automobilists. One farmer has encased his mail box post in a heavy timber sunk into the ground about six feet, so that if any automobile should strike it, it will be the automobile that will be damaged rather than the mail box or post.

ON THE SCREEN

CONSTANCE TALMADGE AND WALTER EDWARDS A FINE COMEDY TEAM

"Good Night, Paul!" with Constance Talmadge, the star at the New Bijou Wednesday and Thursday. The photoplay was adapted from the musical comedy success with the same title, in which Ralph Herz made a distinct hit. Walter Edwards, who directed the picture, has aptly termed it "the comedy of a thousand laughs" and it is a veritable whirlwind of wholesome comedy situations heightened by suspense and occasional thrills.

As Matilda Landers, Constance Talmadge adds still another to her now famous characterizations of screen heroines, bubbling over with infectious enthusiasm, independence, charm and youthfulness. Richard Landers the heroine's young husband and his partner, Paul Boudeaux, are in a financial blind alley. There seems to be no way out when Paul's rich Uncle Batiste announces his forthcoming visit. Paul bethinks himself of his uncle's, promise to settle $50,000 on him if he will marry and thus perpetuate the family name. Here is an obvious solution of the problem, but Paul is a confirmed woman-hater and refuses to marry anyone.

A SON OF THE SAHARA

Anyone who thinks that better moving pictures of the Sahara desert can be made in Hollywood than in the Sahara itself is due for enlightening disillusionment if he goes this week to the Elite. There where "A Son of the Sahara" is on view.

It will be a revelation to him. It was to this writer who reviewed it yesterday when it opened a three days engagement. "A Son of the Sahara" is a First National picture. And it was filmed by Edwin Carewe in Algeria on the great desert itself.

IS THE REAL THING

Fine castles, drawing rooms, even whole towns have been wonderfully well reproduced in Hollywood for the screen. But no human can construct so mighty and majestic a setting as the Sahara. And here on the screen is the real thing with picturesque Arab villages, great camel caravans and the colorful people of the desert themselves.

A great setting and incomparable atmosphere for a fine story, well enacted by a cast of such talented players as Bert Lytell, Claire Windsor, Walter McGill, Rosemary Theby, Montague Love and Paul Panzer. They say that the trip to "location" covered 14,000 miles. Well, it was worth it.

Bert Lytell, in the leading male role as Raoul Le Breton, gives a powerful performance, the best perhaps he has yet done in pictures, and Miss Windsor, in the chief feminine part, is more appealing than ever as Barbara, the heroine.

WINNECONNE HORDE OF ANGLERS TOO BIG FOR SUPPLY OF FISH

There was enough bait soaked in the Wolf river at Winneconne Sunday to give all the fish in that locality a good dinner, and Appleton anglers were numerous among those who were giving baths to minnows.

Winneconne village looked like a county fair grounds, with automobiles of fishermen parked all over its principal streets. There were 246 boats on the river at one time in the morning, and both the bridge and the docks were lined almost solidly with other fisherfolk hoping to bring home their share of white bass, perch or pickerel.

Interest in the sport began to abate toward noon, when it was found that there weren't enough fish to go around, but the bridge squad continued its vigil in the afternoon in the hope that better luck would come after the ranks were thinned.

MANAWA ORATOR WINS PRIZE AS MOTHER DIES

Stevens Point—Pluck won commendation for William Carew, Manawa High school orator, in a touching incident during the district high school oratorical contest here. Informed shortly before the time came for him to speak, that his mother had died, the young man took the platform and won second place. At the close of his oration he walked from the stage and broke into sobs. First place in oratory was won by Nels Justleon of Wisconsin Rapids and third by Leon Liljequist of Wausau.

In the extemporaneous contest Francis Cain of Merrill placed first Howard Miller of Wausau, second, and Gerald True of Almond, third.

In declamation, Helen Krejpe, Stevens Point, was first; Florence Comeau, Tomahawk, second and Margaret Anderson, Waupaca, third.

ORDER HEARING ON KAUKAUNA BRIDGE

Steel Lift Bridge Across River and Canal Is Under Consideration

Government engineers will hold a hearing at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, May 27, at Kaukauna for the purpose of considering plans for construction of a lift highway bridge across Fox river and the United State canal between Island-st and Wisconsin-ave.

Persons interested are invited to be present or to be represented, particularly navigation interests, and the officials of any county, city, town or local associations whose interests may be affected by the construction of the proposed bridge.

They will be given an opportunity to express their views upon the suitability of the location and the adequacy of the plans in reference to navigation and to suggest changes considered desirable in the interests of navigation.

The plans submitted by the applicant provide for a lift draw bridge across the United States canal, 6.5 feet above standard low water when draw is closed. The span will be 90 feet wide in clear, with right abutment 65 feet from the end of masonry retaining wall along Fox river. With draw raised, low steel will be 61.5 feet above standard low water.

A "NEW" WORLD COURT

Senator Lodge submits a new plan for a world court. It is much the same as the court which now exists, except that the senator from Massachusetts wishes to go through the empty formality of separating it in his imagination from the League of Nations, with which it has, as a matter of fact, no connection whatsoever. Mr. Lodge wants a third Hague conference called for the purpose of organizing a new court. Realizing the difficulties that at the two previous Hague conferences prevented the formation of a court, he proposes to circumvent the obstacle by "lifting" the present court away from its origin, which is now ancient history, and deposit it fresh and glittering at the Netherland's capital as a Lodge-American creation.

The memories of 1919 rankle in Mr. Lodge's breast. Although the man is gone whom he temporarily thwarted, nevertheless that great figure bequeathed to the senator from Massachusetts a reputation for littleness and meanness that will stamp him in history as one of the inglorious, short-sighted politicians of the day. Mr. Lodge knows this and he sweats under it. He knows he has chosen an ignoble role but he is going to see the thing through out of sheer aggravation. If Mr. Lodge had a sincere desire to serve the cause of peace and adjudication of world disputes he would have added his influence to that of the late President Harding to secure American adhesion to the world court now functioning. He is playing the only kind of politics he knows, which is to be different from those who disagree with him politically and morally.

What prevented the formation of a world court at the two previous Hague conferences, the first of which was held a quarter of a century ago, was inability to agree on the method of selecting members of the court. This barrier was insuperable, both the great and the small powers desiring severally protection one against the other. The constitution of the League, solved the same problem in the formation of that organization by creating a council and an assembly, comparable to our senate and house of representatives, for the balancing of power between large and small states. The world court simply adopted this machinery using the members of the council and the assembly as an election machinery for filling vacancies of the court. Neither the council nor the assembly sits as such when they engage in these elections. They act as individuals. They do not represent the League or the nations from which they are accredited. It is a practical electoral device and overcomes the objections to control of the court membership by either the small nations or the great powers.

Mr. Harding fully understood the nature, origin and workings of the world court when he so ardently espoused American adhesion. So did Mr. Hughes, who first urged it on the president. Reservations were incorporated, safeguarding American interests in every particular, even going so far as to deny in advance any connection whatsoever with the League of Nations or its activities. Mr. Coolidge has indorsed the proposal of his predecessor for American adhesion. Statesmen, publicists and our authorities on international law are a unit in support of the court. So are the churches, labor, the legal profession, the banks and commercial interests and the farmers. Mr. Lodge's captiousness, intriguing and animosities alone block the way. If Mr. Coolidge yields to the Lodge scheme he will have to abandon his secretary of state and the intelligent and conscientious judgment of the country.

PUBLICITY AND THE PRESS

Governor George S. Silzer of New Jersey comes forward with a vigorous indorsement of that old idea, which is frequently tried out, that publicity is the surest preventive and cure of political corruption. Official wrong doing and business men have mastered the system of deceiving the public.

Those who do wrong fear nothing so much as they do publicity. The public officer does not want to be exposed in his betrayal of public trust. The citizen who is guilty with him does not want to be shamed socially by being shown up as a civic traitor.

Were all public business conducted openly there would be little graft. It would not be so easy to keep crooked deals secret. The likelihood of exposure would deter soft-spine officials and venturesome citizens from risking reputation and social and business standing. When you figure it out to ultimate conclusion, the daily press is the most powerful force for good government and citizenship. The press is the mainstay of representative government.

Had it not been for the publicity given the scandals unearthed at Washington, they would have been covered up by politics. Not half of the facts that have been given to the people would ever have come out. The investigations would have been a whitewash in the absence of newspaper publicity. Political rascality can never stand the light of day and the fear of the newspaper is always hanging over its head. It is ten times as effective as courts and statutes.

TRAFFIC CONGESTION

Traffic congestion in cities brings forth many unusual and ingenius remedies. Baltimore, like Boston, is considering the three-day-a-week idea, by which cars with even license numbers can park downtown on even dates, and those with odd numbers can use the downtown streets on odd dates. San Francisco is considering the erection of a skyscraper garage for all-day parking, to relieve the congestion of downtown streets.

Most cities which have experimented with the restricted parking idea have found it more or less of a failure. A town which has ten thousand automobiles parked in its business district, enacts a "one-hour" parking law. If the law is observed, ten thousand cars are moved from one place to another every hour. But they are not removed from the restricted area, only shifted around in it. Merchants who have been most heartily in favor of restricted parking, claiming that cars parked in front of the places of business keep away shoppers, are in many localities reversing themselves, finding that restricted parking keeps shoppers away from their localities and results in decentralized shopping districts.

The parking and traffic problem of the cities, now in an acute stage, is to some extent a forerunner of the traffic and parking problem of the highway as it will be in the future. Well traveled main roads are now demonstrated in many cases to be far too narrow. Many main arteries of travel between large cities are now being widened at a great expense, which could largely have been saved had plans been made ten years ago for such widening. New roads are wisely built when plans for expansion are made at the time of building.

TODAY'S POEM

By Berton Braley

ICONOCLASTS

There is a certain type of goof,
Who always has undoubted proof
That no great man alive or dead
Has said the things we think he said,
Or done the things we thought he did.
From Cheops and his pyramid
To Henry and his well known flivver,
This doubting Thomas will deliver
Proof that these big men we recall
Deserve no credit, none at all.

It matters not what name you mention
In art, in letters or invention,
Or who may be the mighty giants
In war or politics or science,
These expert knockers will essay
To take their credit all away
And give it to some gent unknown
Who was "the power behind the throne."

Perhaps they're right, but I prefer
To think my heroes really were
Heroic as I've always thought;
And that the things they said and wrought
Were mostly theirs—and mostly true.
I like illusions, so I do;
I like my idols, and I trust 'em
More than I trust the guys who'd bust 'em!

JUST SNAKES AND FIREWORKS

By the time we had dispatched the mad dog in our last encounter, the children will remember, it became necessary to postpone the snakes and fireworks. The dog tore around so and created so much excitement that we had to devote the whole session to him. Now let's hurry along the snakes and fireworks and get 'em all shot off before we close today.

First, a kind word for the snakes. A fatality from snakebite is almost an unheard of thing in America. Even rattlesnake bites are rarely fatal and indeed they are seldom even dangerous to human life. Experts assure us there are just four species of poisonous snakes in America—rattlesnakes, vipers, copperheads and moccasins. These are all pitvipers, that is, there are pits or depressions in their heads over the lip between the eye and the nostril, a feature which distinguishes the poisonous snake from the harmless kind. Other peculiarities which help to distinguish venomous from harmless snakes are the triangular shape of the head, due to the wider jaws, the greater thickness of body in proportion to length, the eliptical pupil—the harmless snakes have a round pupil—and the rougher surface of the venomous varieties. The harmless snakes will bite sometimes if annoyed, but their bite is no more dangerous than a pin prick. The venomous snake bites or rather strikes with his fangs, not with his tongue. The forked tongue of the common black snake and other harmless varieties is not a "stinger" as some people imagine.

Cut into a snake bite with the point of a razor, or a penknife, or a needle, just enough to make it bleed, then suck the wound to draw out as much blood and venom as possible. The venom is harmless if there is no wound or abrasion on your mouth. bind something tightly about the limb above the bite to impede the flow of blood and spread of venom. Otherwise treat the bite as you would any simple wound.

Perhaps the best antidote is a 5 per cent solution of potassium permanganate in water, injected with a hypodermic syringe into the skin about and under the wound. Of course these things must be done promptly to be effective.

Now for the fireworks. Lockjaw, you know, is the disease doctors call tetanus, spasms or convulsions occuring from four days to several weeks after infection with lockjaw bavilli or spores thru some wound which is more often trifling in itself, particularly slight wounds, burns or abrasions from fireworks, powder, toy pistols. The lockjaw germs naturally inhabit the intestinal tract of animals and may therefore be present in street dirt, about stables, barns or barnyards, in the soil of gardens where manure has been spread, and particularly in the summer season. It is advisable, therefore, to give extraordinary care to wounds possibly contaminated by street dirt in the summer time, and especially punctures or wounds in which foreign matter such as powder, wadding, bits of cloth, glass or metal may be embedded—it is best to have a surgeon attend such wounds in the first place. A doctor can administer a phophylactic dose of antitetanic serum at the time of the first aid dressing, which will prevent the dreadful possibility in any case. Cauterization of the wound, if it reaches every nook, would destroy any lockjaw germs, of course.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Tuesday, May 16, 1899.

William Keller returned from a Milwaukee visit.

Mrs. Gus Johnson left for Milwaukee for a visit with friends.

Mrs. W. H. Holcomb and two sons left for the Pacific coast where they were to remain until August.

Former Sheriff John Fose, 60, died Sunday evening after a prolonged illness.

The local order of Elks organized four years previous was growing rapidly and had a membership of 70.

D. B. Bailey, who had been in business continuously for 32 years, disposed of his stock and was about to move to California.

A delegation of 30 veterans of the Civil war left for Milwaukee to attend the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Miss Maude Zonne returned from an extended visit with Sheboygan relatives.

The most prominent portion of the first page of the Milwaukee Sentinel was occupied by portraits and sketches of Mrs. Libbie C. Baer of Appleton and Mrs. Sophia N. Strathearn of Kaukauna.

Oscar Byrnes, who had been making his home in Michigan for several years, was elected manager of Appleton Pickle and Preserving company and was to move his family to Appleton.

Sheriff William Wilson gave up his passes on the Northwestern and Central railroads which was made necessary under a new law which went into effect.

TEN YEARS AGO
Tuesday, May 12, 1914.

Joseph Klein of Hortonville was an Appleton visitor.

Joseph Peeters of Little Chute was in Appleton on business.

L. M. Alexander of Port Edwards, a member of the board of trustees of Lawrence college, attended a meeting of the board the previous evening.

Judge Thomas H. Ryan, Thomas Flanagan and Joseph J. Plank left for Beloit to attend the state convention of the Knights of Columbus.

Helen Stanley, grand opera prima donna, was to close the All Star Artist series of Lawrence Conservatory of Music on May 26.

Matthew Poblan, 60, a pioneer of Manitowoc, was drowned in the government canal at Kaukauna the previus week.

SEEN, HEARD and IMAGINED
---that's all there is to life

Good evening, people! Lots of folks are waiting for the chance of taking a drive down Cherry-st bridge—and a drive right back again.

—o—

Now that the comon council and S. A. Whedon have kissed and made up, we presume all this talk about condemnation will be changed to commendation hereafter. (Third war excepted.)

—o—

EPITAPH

There was a lad
Named Willie Fain;
He raced to beat
A railroad train;
At crossing could
Not wait a minute—
This grave is his
And he's here in it.

Zip

—o—

Dear Rollo: Aside from the scandalous report in the P-C, I have no interest in the matter, it would be safe to send a committee consisting of Bob McGillan and Wenz Hassman out to investigate the matter.

"Pussyfoot"

The staff copyreader tells us that occasionally he does see red, and wants to know, Pussyfoot, if you belong to the Red Arrow club. And besides, if the fellow wanted to marry the girl, he ought to take what was coming to him, don't you think?

—o—

ROLLO—As to selling that Third ward engine house, we warn the council to go slow. They may need it as a dormitory for the crew that operates the turntable at the south end of the Cherry-st bridge.

—Ike M.

—o—

A Courteous Cop

There is an Appleton official—and we won't even tell you his first name—who has conceived a great respect for the motorcop in Washington-co. The cop told him he had followed him for 15 miles and was doing 35 to 45 miles an hour all the time. He knew it was true, and was about to ask when he should appear. "It is too fast," said the cop, "and the next time I might not let you off."

—o—

ROLLO: Who'd a thunk we'd be walking into friend Fred's office Saturday and saying, "Good morning, judge?" The first name his dad gave him won't be good for much now.

—Lemual

—o—

No use talking. We've got to persuade the council to pick out a more dignified name for Green Bay-st, now that we have two judges living on it.

ROLLO.

Reach Heihgt In Rush From Canada To U.S.

(From The Manchester Guardian).

The high mark of Canadian immigration into the United States has been reached during the last few months, it appears, and the tide is said to be flowing chiefly from the west and east of Canada, and in smaller volume from the central section. The drift of Canadians across the line is the most serious problem affecting Canada's growth and prosperity. The problem has always existed, for the boundery is so unsubstantial that an ambitious young Canadian moves to Detroit, or Buffalo, or New York, or Chicago with no greater wrench than he would move to Toronto or Montreal.

With the advent of Canada's century it was thought the movement had been finely checked. But when the census figures of 1921 were published it was learned with dismay that a million or more Canadians were lost. They had moved across the line. The discovery was an unpleasant shock. But recent figures are far more disconcerting.

For the first nine months of 1923 more than 127,000 Canadians entered the United States and registered their intention of remaining there. In June, July, August and September the figures ran from 16,000 to 18,000 a month. Officials estimated that this means of migration of perhaps 25,000 a month, because not all who move out are officially recorded as permanent emigrants.

This movement, if maintained would mean a loss of 300,000 a year, which will scarcely be replaced by immigration and natural increase. Moreover, a movement which takes out of Canada chiefly native-born Canadians and replaces them only with babies and with inexperienced arrivals from Europe, results in a serious net loss to the country.

The Question Box

(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing The Appleton Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Frederick J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. This offer applies strictly to information. The Bureau cannot give advice on legal, medical, and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic troubles, nor to undertake exhaustive research on any subject. Write your question plainly and briefly. Give full name and address and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

Q. Does Japan raise enough rice to feed her people? N. W.

A. There is a yearly shortage of rice in Japan that has to be made up by importation. T. Shidachi says that only about 15 per cent of the area of Japan is under cultivation. This is an interesting fact in considering the modern problems of over population and food shortage in this island.

Q. What state has the longest period of below zero weather in the United States? E. W. W.

A. The Weather Bureau says that no exact compilation has been made of data along the line of your inquiry, but it is probably safe to say that the state of North Dakota has temperatures below zero for a longer period each year than other States in the Union, as a whole.

Q. What is the size of the throat of a whale? H. H.

A. The Blue whale, the largest animal alive to-day, reaching a length in excess of 80 feet with a mouth so large that 10 to 12 men could stand therein, has a throat but about eight inches in diameter. This is one of the whalebone whales, all of which feed upon minute crustaceans, especially the little red shrimp which is about ¾ of an inch long. As much as four barrels of this shrimp have been found in the stomach of a blue whale, which even then was not full.

Q. Are Johns Hopkins University and Johns Hopkins Hospital the same institution? N. K.

A. They are separate institutions founded and endowed by Johns Hopkins. Johns Hopkins Medical School is part of the University and is closely allied with the hospital. The total gift for these institutions was more than $7,000,000.

Q. Please give Babe Ruth's height, weight, and age? E. P.

A. He is thirty years old, 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 205 pounds.

Q. What were the immediate sources of the plots of "As You Like It" and "A Winter's Tale"? B. N. G.

A. "Rosalind" by Thomas Lodge, and "Pandosto", a novel by Robert Greene gave Shakespeare the suggestions for these plays.

Q. Please tell me how to make some easy digestable liquid foods for a sick person? M. N.

A. Milk, eggs and gruels are probably the most important foods for the sick. Beef juice is very nourishing. To make it, cut the meat into small pieces and heat it slightly; then extract the juice by means of a meat press or lemon squeezer. Beef tea has little nourishment but is stimulating. To make it, soak chopped beef in water for an hour; cook slightly over hot water until it becomes reddish brown, stirring the while; then season. Albumin water is made by pouring the white of one egg and one-half pint of water into a bottle and shaking the mixture well. A nutritious orangeade is made by beating the white of one egg with one teaspoonful of sugar, and adding the juice of an orange and five ounces of water. Barley water is often permitted when no other food is allowed. To make it add one teaspoonful of pearl barley to one quart of cold water; boil it two hours; add water from time to time. Strain it and add enough boiled water to make one quart.

Q. Are there more blind men or blind women? B. N. G.

A. Of the enumerated blind in 1920, 30,160 were males and 22,407 females.

Q. What is sausage poisoning? H.C.H.

A. Sausage poisoning is the term used in Germany for botulism.

Q. Can I raise rubber trees in this country? E. J. B.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that rubber trees will not flourish in this country and that experimentation along this line is not worth while.

Q. Are the sounds caused by laughter made entirely by the vocal chords? W. V.

A. Laughter is a combination of the sound produced from the vocal chords by a series of short expiratory blasts and very characteristic sounds from the vibrating structures of the larynx and pharynx.

Q. Are the hairs found on chickens really hairs or are they embryo feathers? V. B. L.

A. The body-covering of birds is, without exception, comprised of feathers and by this character alone birds may be distinguished from all other animals. There are several different kinds of feathers; the filoplumes are degenrate structures having a superficial resemblance to hairs, but they always bear a minute vane at the tip. They occur in all birds, in clusters of varying number, about the bases of contour feathers.

No man knows when a woman is going to change her mind

Tuesday of last week we were trying on suits with a young married man.

The suit he admired most was a beautiful tan—"But—" he said, "my wife will never let me wear anything brown or tan—I've heard her say it a thousand times."

Wednesday—the same customer—this time with his wife.

We commenced to show the garments, when out of a clear sky, Mrs. Blank's eye fell on this certain tan and she exclaimed, "Oh, that's the shade for you, Tom, I've always loved you in tan!"

There you are—that's why there's not a new shade from Powder Blue to Sepia that we do not carry in stock.

ORIOLE SERENADERS

Constipation can ruin your health—get permanent relief with Kellogg's Bran

When clean and clear, the intestine is converting wholesome food into vigorous health. But when clogged by constipation, it generates poisons from the obstructed food that can lead to many serious diseases.

Kellogg's Bran sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It has a natural, healthy action. It works exactly as nature acts. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to relieve permanently the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer will return your money.

Results with Kellogg's Bran are sure, for Kellogg's is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. That is why Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is endorsed by doctors everywhere. Eat it and you need never take another habit-forming drug or pill.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, should be eaten regularly—at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. You will enjoy eating it. Kellogg's Bran has a wonderful flavor, a delicious nut-like flavor. And this flavor is an exclusive Kellogg achievement.

There are many ways to enjoy Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. Eat it with milk or cream as a cereal. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Look for the recipes on every package and try it in muffins, griddle cakes, bran bread, etc.

Bring back your health with Kellogg's Bran. Start to-day! Every member of your family should eat it. The leading hotels and clubs serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. It is made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

Kaukauna—Frank W. Kuehl, private secretary to Governor J. J. Blaine and at one time principal of the high school at Iron River, Mich., was a guest Saturday of J. F. Cavanaugh, superintendent of schools. Mr. Kuehl combined business with pleasure during his visit here, and saw many old friends. Mr. Cavanaugh and Mr. Kuehl became acquainted at Iron River. Mrs. Kuehl was here also and was the guest of Miss Almeda Johnson, teacher of English in the high school.

TRAVELER GIVES SLIDE LECTURE ON HAWAII

Kaukauna—A large crowd is expected to attend the lecture on Hawaii to be given Tuesday evening by Charles A. Payne in First Congregational church. Mr. Payne will accompany his talk with colored slides. The lecturer was here last year and gave a pleasing program. The lecture is scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock.

SISTER IS ILL

Kaukauna—Mrs. Annie Nagan and her son Leo Nagen left early Monday morning by auto for Milwaukee where they expected to spend a few days. Mrs. Nagan planned to drive to Grafton Monday evening to visit her sister, Mrs. Joseph Arentz. Sometime after she started on the trip a message was received here that Mrs. Arentz was critically ill and was not expected to live. Efforts to communicate with Mrs. Nagan in Milwaukee were futile.

High School Begins Issuing Student Paper

Hortonville — The "Broadcaster" made its appearance at high school recently and was hailed with interest and appreciation by the student body. The "Broadcaster" is a high school paper issued every two weeks, containing school news, particularly good themes, sport news and other things of interest to the high school students.

School annuals have been issued here for several years, but this is the first time an attempt at a weekly or semi-monthly publication has been made and it is the belief of Prof. Volney Leister that once the students have become interested in the work, they will make great efforts to promote the "Broadcaster."

Copies of the paper are produced by means of a mimeograph which was purchased by the school board a short while ago.

GREEN DIVISION OPENS NEW SAFETY RACE AT KIMBERLY

Talks, Dancing and Musical Numbers Are Presented Before Mill Workers

Special to Post-Crescent

Kimberly—The first program of the new safety contest at Kimberly, starting May 1 and ending July 1, was given by the green division in the Kimberly clubhouse Monday noon. The program was put on by the finishing room, which is in the Green division, and was one of the best at any safety meeting in the clubhouse. It was attended by the largest crowd that has witnessed any of the programs. The hall was filled to capacity.

The program was opened with a speech by the chairman, in which he congratulated the people on the fine turnout at the safety parade a week before. He also spoke on the idea of beating Niagara's world record and of the cooperation necessary to do so. This was followed by a May pole dance by eight girls from the finishing room.

Charles Poppe, foreman of the finishing room then gave a talk on "Why Accident Preventive Measures Are Taken by the Employers". The next was a saxophone and clarinet duet by Joseph Hammon and Wilfred Van Den Berg.

This was followed by a dance, the highland fling, by Miss Bertha Ganzer, accompanied by Miss Jane Malcolm on the piano. A. Malcolm, Sr., on the violin and A. Malcolm, Jr., on the cello. A clarinet duet was given by Joseph Hammen and William Maas, and by Miss Julia Frye. The program ended with the "Smile" song by 12 girls of the finishing room. The costumes were all quite attractive.

Verhagen post of the American legion of Kimberly, held a dinner for wives and friends of members in the Kimberly clubhouse Monday evening. Dancing followed the dinner.

Work has begun on the new Kimberly junior high school and is progressing rapidly. The basement is being dug and sewer connections made.

This New Treatment Never Fails To End Piles

Many sufferers from Piles or Hemorrhoids have become despondent because they have been led to believe that their case was hopeless and that there was nothing in the world to help them.

To these people we say, "Go to your druggust and get an original box of MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES." One of these inserted into the rectum according to directions will be found to give immediate relief. They reach the source of the trouble and by their soothing, healing, antiseptic action first allay the pain and soreness and then by direct contact with the ulcers and piles cause them to heal up and disappear forever.

It's simply wonderful how speedily they act. Blessed relief often comes in two days. Even in cases that have steadily resisted all known treatments, marvelous results have been obtained.

Schlintz Bros Co. dispense MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES in the original box or can get it for you on short notice. adv.

2 NEW TEACHERS ARE ENGAGED FOR FACULTY AT H. S.

Board of Education Welcomes Mayor As Member and Chooses Textbooks

Meetings of the high school board and the board of education, which have identical memberships, were called in the dining room of Appleton high school on Monday afternoon to consider important business. The meetings followed a luncheon served to the board members by home economics classes of the high school.

The high school board considered its usual monthly business, discussed the music situation in the school, engaged two new teachers and welcomed Mayor John Goodland Jr., as the new chairman of the board. The board of education met to chose Pilot's Arithmetic, Books 1 and 2 for the text books in arithmetic for the grade schools. It also engaged Miss Hannah I. Gardner for next year for the school of the deaf and empowered the secretary, Miss Carrier E. Morgan, to issue a contract to the assistant in the school if it is found that there will be more than 10 students in the school.

$21,000 BALANCE

The financial report presented to the high school board showed that the school fund has a balance of $20,996.46. The truant officer's report indicated 60 cases of truancy of which 26 were boys and 34 girls. Miss Morgan reported that the spring vacation next year will commence on April so that it may be in holy week.

The two teachers who have been engaged for the high shool for next year are Miss Catherine Broderick who will fill the place of Miss Lietha Dambruch and Miss Hilda Eller who will take Miss Dorothy Jones' place. Miss Dambruch resigned because of her approaching marriage and Miss Jones is leaving to take a position near Madison.

State Trying To Clear Title To Land Sold Many Years Ago

Between 100,000 and 150,000 acres of land bordering the Fox and Wisconsin rivers in 35 counties of the state, including Outagamie-co, are without clear title in spite of the fact that the properties have gone through many hands for the last seventy years, it is held by the state.

To remove the cloud on these properties, M. Lampert, chief clerk of the state land office at Madison, was looking up the records of the office of A. G. Koch, register of deeds, recently, to see which land was originally included in the Fox and Wisconsin River Improvement company federal land grants.

It is possible that a number of lots platted from old government lots in Appleton and elsewhere in the county are still without clear title. Land for which the federal government issued patents prior to the Fox and Wisconsin Improvement company grants are not affected.

WOULD CLEAR RECORD

When these grants of 684,269 acres were made, the State of Wisconsin was made trustee, and the governor was authorized to issue patents. The land was sold by the state land commission, but between 1,000 and 1,500 patents conveyed by the state never were recorded. Also about 2,500 patents ordered issued never were issued, for the records do not show they were. The commission was instructed to make monthly reports of the sales made. There should have been 36 reports, but only 19 were recorded. Although many patents were issued, some of them were not actually delivered.

Although much of the land is without clear title, and the state still actually holds the title in trust, it is not the aim of the state to claim an equity in the title. It merely aims to have the records made clear, it was said.

In 1846 the federal government gave Wisconsin a large tract of land to make a navigable route from Lake Michigan via the Fox and Wisconsin rivers. After spending some money in improvements, the state transferred the project to the Fox and Wisconsin Improvement company. The project was later abandoned, and the franchises, property and land grants were sold to the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal company.

When Mr. Lampert completed his work here he went to other counties to continue his investigation. He found the old records of the register of deeds office in a very satisfactory condition which made it comparatively easy to obtain the data he desired.

DIVORCE AS LAST RESORT APPROVED BY CHICAGO JUDGE

Crime To Make Mismated People Live Together, Says Family Arbiter

By Associated Press

Chicago —"I am not opposed to divorce: I am in favor of it."

This from Judge Joseph Sabath of the Superior Court of Cook County, who has heard more divorce cases and granted more decrees of divorce than any other judge in the land.

But the statement is not complete until it is mentioned that he holds the record also for bringing wrangling, discontented, uncomprehending couples into harmony again. The overwhelming majority of his reconciliations, too, have been permanent.

In virtually every case where children are involved and where both parties appear in court, the gray-eyed, understanding, fatherly judge adjourns the hearing and calls husband and wife into his chambers for a private talk. Court attendants have come to expect that, after one of those conferences, the suit will be withdrawn.

IT'S THE SPIRIT

"Marriage between mismated persons is not a holy institution," says the judge. "It is a crime to force such people to live together. When a man and woman come into court and tell their stories, I am not paying so much attention to the facts they introduce as evidence. I am trying to understand the spirit back of them.

"If they seem not to have the qaulities for getting along together, if they do not appear as possible mates, I am anxious to grant a divorce. I will go as far to separate them as I would in another situation to reconcile them."

Two requirements before marriage would cut the divorce problem in half, Judge Sabath believes. One is that the ceremony should not be performed until 30 days after the license issued. The other, that each be examined physically and found free from communicable, hereditary diseases.

DANCE-MARRIAGES

"At least half the divorce cases are the result of frivolous, blind one-night marriages," he says. "A couple meets and decides in a few hours to marry because they have too much to drink or the girl is pretty, or the man is a good dancer.

"Money matters are not an important element, provided the couple starting out determines each to help get along on what they have. I was just 18 when I married and I was earning only $10 a week. We got along, and we've always been happy."

Under the strain of the court, Judge Sabath's health broke last year and he was compelled to take a prolonged vacation.

"If one considers divorce cases simply as a cold legal proposition, they are no harder than any other class of work," he explains. "I can not let them go that way, though. I've got to get the human elements adjusted as harmoniously as possible."

MAN AND LIGHTNING EQUALLY TO BLAME FOR FOREST FIRES

Destruction in California Last Year Greater Than Ever Before

San Francisco—Man and lightning share equal responsibility in the fact that forest fires in California were more destructive during the past year than in any other state, according to a report issued by the United States forest service here.

More fires were started in national forests of California than in any year since 1917. In a total of 1,367 fires nearly 50 percent were attributed to lightning, the rest to human carelessness and of the man-caused fires, tobacco smokers started 358, or 50 per cent, and campers 117, or 16 per cent. Railroads, brush-burners, lumbering and incendiarism accounted for the rest.

Eighty-six percent of all the California fires in national forests were extinguished by forest rangers and their cooperators before more than 10 acres had been covered by flames. Forest officers obtained convictions against 120 violators of state and federal fire laws.

"The 'tailor-made' cigarette and the unextinguished match continue to be the greatest enemies of our forests," said District Forester Paul G. Redington. "It is surprising also to note the number of fires started by careless campers.

"The forest service would regret exceedingly to have to issue orders restricting the public use of our national forests, which cover the greater part of the mountain regions of the state and constitute a most popular playground. But if such action is taken, the public will have only itself to blame. One thing is certain, we have to reduce the number of man-caused fires, and if educational methods fail to produce the desired results, the government is prepared to take more stringent measures."

They were Major Fred Hoffman, Capt. E. F. Grunderman, Capt. F. B. Rogers, Lieut. Cloyd Schroeder, Lieut. Harry M. Kerrigan, Sergeant John N. Hancock, Sergeant Howard VanOoyan, Sergeant William Donovan, Sergeant Ervin Bogan, Corporal Robert A. Sanders, Corporal Donald A. Kurz, Corporal Phelan VanRyzin, Major Albert Tucker Sergeant Hubert Piette and Private, first class, Orville Muenster. Fred A. Rogers, a former member of the company, also attended.

The banquet was given by the officers for contestants in the shoot held last summer. The trophy cup for rifle team honors was won by the Adjutant's section, 22nd cavalry division of Neenah Menasha. Capt. Grunderman of Appleton was awarded the individual trophy for both events.

Both rifle and pistol events will be held on the same day at the next shoot, which will take place July 6 on the Oshkosh range.

EDUCATION BOARD AVERSE TO LARGER PROGRAM OF MUSIC

Disposition of Lions Club Band Proposal Left to Committee

Whether Appleton high school will have a full time instructor for music, including the development of a band next year will be determined by committee on teachers and texts of the board of education to which it was referred at the regular meeting of the high school board on Monday afternoon. The matter was turned over to the committee for further consideration after a discussion of the whole music situation at the school. This committee will report the matter back to the board in June.

NOT ENOUGH TIME

In discussing the situation as presented by the special committee which included John Hantschel, A. G. Koch and Lee C. Rasey, it was pointed out that because of the crowded condition of the school there will be no place for the additional music groups, including the band, to practice unless rooms are rented outside of the school building. It was pointed out that it scarcely will be possible to employ a full time instructor when he would be able to meet the students at only two periods during the day. The discussion showed that the board was in favor of continuing the music which is now a part of the school program but was averse to adding more work on the eve of the opening of the new junior schools.

NO DEFINITE ACTION

The resolution presented to the school board of the meeting of the committee on May 8 and of its action to meet with W. E. Smith, Ben Rohan and Henry Schell of the Lions club on May 9. The recommendation to the school board and the information given to the Lions club follows:

"The committee informed the members of the Lions club that the board of education had taken no definite action as yet regarding a band, but they were disposed to work out ways and means which would provide for the music program in the school with the addition of a band organized next year.

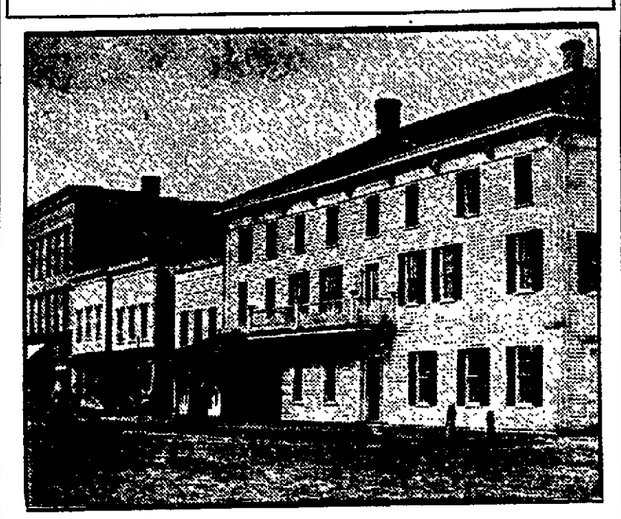
MANY DIFFICULTIES

"They further informed the Lions club committee that the board of education appreciates their efforts in raising a fund for band instruments, and that the board of education will make all reasonable provisions which will enable them to accept the instruments and provide for their use. Some of the difficulties which the board of education face were pointed out.

"The committee recommends to the Board of Education that provision be made to continue the music work in the high school and that an instructor be engaged who can continue that work and in addition organize and conduct a band. They propose that if feasible a full time instructor be engaged at a salary not to exceed $3000.00. They suggest the possibility of renting rooms in the Moose Club Building."

Appleton's Pioneers Fed Well When They Stopped At Levake House

APPLETON'S EARLY HOTEL



THE LEVAKE HOUSE

BY MURIEL KELLY

Saddle of antelope with currant jelly, fillet of buffalo larder a-la-de-hunter, chicken salad a-la-mayonaise, boned turkey a-la-Parisen, broiled quail on toast, lobster salad, beef tongue and sliced ham was the choice of meat offered to the Outagamie County Pioneers association on Jan. 15, 1873 when the association gave a benefit banquet for the proprietors of the New Levake hotel, then located in the second and third stories of what is now the Woolworth building. The hotel which is seen in the picture and which was located at the corner of College-ave and Morrison-st burned some time in 1872, but pioneers fail to remeber the exact date of the fire.

John F. Johnston became the proprietor of the Levake house a short time before the fire, it having been operated prior to that time by Col. H. L. Blood, one of the pioneer hotelmen of Wisconsin. It is thought that the hotel was first started in the fifties by a man who is remembered only as Mr. Hoyt. The hotel was run at about the same time as the National, the Edgar, which later was known as the Park hotel and the Waverly hotel. Its name is thought to have been taken from the family history of Col. Blood whose middle initial was "L," which pioneers are certain stood for the name "Levake."

PIONEER HOTELMAN

The last proprietor of the hotel where it is located in the picture is the Mr. Johnston who built the first rooming house in Appleton when Col. Blood came to Appleton to start the Lawrence institute building. Mr. and Mrs. Johnston had the first "shanty" which was located at the corner of Durkee and Johnston-sts. Although they had not planned to run a hotel, it was in their home that many early pioneers spent their first night in Appleton.

The fire which destroyed the Levake house started in Phinney's grocery store, two or three doors west of the hotel. Mr. Phinney went too near a barrel of kerosene with a lamp when he was looking for something in the store room and the kerosene exploded. The entire group of small buildings shown in the picture including the first brick building was destroyed by that fire.

Mr. Johnston moved his hotel into the building now occupied by the Woolworth store. The new hotel had been ready for use only a short time before the pioneers' benefit banquet for the proprietor. A copy of the menu for this occasion recently was sent to John Conway from the keepsakes of Mr. Stone, one of Appleton' early printers. Other parts of the menu are in keeping with the choice of meats.

SELECT MAY 24 FOR GIRL SCOUTS AWARD

Girl scouts are making preparations for their annual court of award which will take place in Appleton high school gymnasium on May 24. At this time all the merit badges and honors which the girls have won during the year will be given out.

As preparations for the court, Miss Dorothy Zufeldt will give a second class test at Appleton Womans clubhouse on Tuesday afternoon. The test will be followed at 5 o'clock by a practice of songs for the court ceremony. All work which the girls wish to finish this year is being hurried into the two weeks so that the court may indicate the progress up to date.

Plans are being made by the scouts and the camp fire girls for the annual field meet at Jones park on May 31. The field meet banner is awarded each year to the winner of this meet. It usually is preceded by a picnic.

SEEK NEW REMEDY FOR GLARE LIGHTS

Night driving will be much safer as a result of a recent discovery in glareless headlighting. Formerly it was though that it was the rays from the top of the light that caused the glare and all of the so-called "non-glare" lens were made with this principle in mind. The prisms to eliminate the gaire were placed on the top of the lens. This was not satisfactory—many of these lens caused a worse glare than the plain glass lens they replaced. For this reason the non-glare law has not been a sucess, it is said. Now it has been found that it is not the rays from the top of the light that cause the glare, as these rays are directed downwards. It is the rays from the bottom of the light which are directed upwards which are responsible. Cardboard covers which fit the bottom of the lens, and which eliminate the glare are now being shown by garagemen. They are said to completely eliminate the glare and give a better driving light than either the plain glass or former non-glare lens.

THE quality that makes the Usco Cord an outstanding value didn't just happen.

It was the result of a determination on the part of the oldest and largest rubber organization in the world to set a new standard in medium priced tire equipment.

It begins on the company's plantations in the Far East where 5,000,000 carefully selected rubber trees furnish latex for the new patented latex process of treating cords.

It ends only when every economy in distribution through thousands of dealer outlets has been effected.

Car owners find the Usco Cord a handsome easy-steering tire giving positive traction and non-skid protection with many added qualities of strength and service. Ask your dealer.

U. S. Tires are the only tires in the world made of cords solutioned in raw rubber latex.

"I Want My Telephone Moved Tomorrow"

"A gentleman rushed into our business office yesterday and requested 'I want my telephone moved tomorrow.'"

"That gentleman was surprised to know, and had not realized that many requests had been placed previous to his, giving from two to three weeks' advance notice.

"Our Plant Department people had arranged 'tomorrow's work' of moving the telephones of patrons who had given two or three weeks' advance notice.

"Obviously it would be unfair to move the telephone of our friend on one day's notice in place of those whose orders were filed well in advance.

"Just as Saturday night rushes at the grocery counter are ordinarily handled in the order in which purchasers appear in the store, so are orders for moving telephones handled in proper order.

"Our friend, who wanted his telephone moved tomorrow, saw the point and when he moves again we are sure he will give us at least two weeks' notice."

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-four Hours.

Every Druggist in this country is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if a full pint bottle of Allenrhu, the sure conquerer of rheumatism, does not show the way to stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenrhu has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, of Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of Allenrhu, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenrhu decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed druggists to guarantee it as above in every instance. 220 MOTHERS AND SONS AT BANQUET IN 'Y' GYMNASIUM

Milwaukee Woman Urges Sons to Make Themselves Worthy of Mothers

"I appeal to you boys to stand with your mothers as patriots of this land, to join with them in helping to keep the combined opponents of prohibition, the white slaves, gamblers and the tobacco interests from wiping out the eighteenth amendment."

With this challenge, Mrs. W. A. Lawson of Milwaukee, former state president of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, appealed to the 220 mothers and boys who filled the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Monday evening at the second annual mother and son banquet sponsored by the Older Boys council of Appleton.

FOLLOW MOTHERS

Mrs. Lawson appealed to the boys to respond to the teachings of their mothers and to train hard to fit themselves for responsible positions.

One feature of the banquet was the employment of the fathers as waiters. The gymnasium was beautifully decorated in purple and white. A huge banner bearing the word "mother" hung over the speaker's table.

Expressing his pleasure at the large attendance at the first program of Appleton Older Boys council, J. Alden Behnke, toastmaster and president of the council, introduced John Bonini, who led in several group songs. A duet, piano and cello, by Mrs. F. H. Jebe and son Carl followed.

Mrs. H. J. Behnke responded to a toast, "The Rising Son" which was followed by a cornet and piano duet by Mrs. H. W. Tuttrup and son Richard. The toast, "Bringing Up Mother" was responded to by Maurice Lewis. The musical part of the program was concluded with a violin and piano duet by Mrs. Ray Challoner and son Edward.

WRIGHT RESIGNS AS PASTOR OF CHURCH

The Rev. E. W. Wright, pastor of Memorial Presbyterian church, has tendered his resignation to the session, which has called a special meeting of the congregation for May 22. After this meeting his resignation will be final. The Rev. Mr. Wright will become pastor of a church in Menominee, Mich. He expects to leave Appleton about the middle of June. He came here two and a half years ago from Oconto.

BUILDING PERMITS

A permit for a fifty-second residence was issued by the city building inspector on Monday. Four building projects certified on that day will cost approximately $4,650. A total of 220 permits issued since Jan. 1 carry cost estimates in the sum of $1,031,882.

Following is a list of the new builders and their projects:

Charles Kneip, 740 Vine-st, residence and garage.

J. H. Landry, 408 Outagamie-st, garage.

Fred J. Wichman, 110 Oklahoma-st, addition to residence.

William Eackes, 392 Richmond-st, garage.

AS THE REVIEWER SEES THEM

"THE INTERPRETER'S HOUSE"

"The Interpreter's House" is Struthers Burt's first novel, but for some years Mr. Burt has been known as one of the country's foremost short-story-writers.

In this book Mr. Burt seeks to present the many phases of present-day social and business life as they appear to a man who has known America before the Jazz Age. Our great cities, Mr. Burt explains, are the "interpreter's houses" where problems are born, developed and solved, and where is found an expression of the unconscious desires of the human race as it now exists.

The story begins with the return of Gulian Eyre to this country after several years roving abroad. He is baffled and disturbed by the new business ethics, the queer philosophy of self-centerdness, the strange new freedom of the young. Gulian's problem of adjusting himself to his present environment and of finding his own particular place in the plan, forms the theme of the story.

The people, whom Gulian encounters are vividly portrayed. Even the wealthy, we are shown, are ordinary people with very human emotions.

300 MILLIONS IN TOURIST BUSINESS, ADVERTISING AIM

Lions Urged to Support Movement to Make Wisconsin The Nation's Playground

"If the recreational advantages of Wisconsin are properly advertised and exploited, Wisconsin will do a tourist business of $300,000,000 a year and will be the nation's playground, P. H. Reilly, representing Wisconsin the Land O'Lakes, Inc., told Appleton Lions club in an address Monday noon. Mr. Reilly urged the Lions to support the movement to advirtise Wisconsin and to help the chamber of commerce raise the money which has been pledged to the advertising fund.

"Advertising has increased the tourist business of Minnesota from $750,000 a year to $30,000,000 a year and many of the tourists who went to Minnesota should have come to Wisconsin. They were lured to Minnesota by the extensive advertising carried on by public spirited men of that state Western Michigan is spending thousands of dollars to attract tourists, and other states, with fewer things to offer, are luring the travelers.

MOST TO OFFER

"Wisconsin has more to offer the tourist and the pleasure seeker than any other state and it is time that our resources are advertised.

"Our biggest task is to bring strangers into the state; after we get them here it is our business to sell them what we have. Every person who comes into the state is a potential resident and if we can present ourselves in the proper way to the strangers attracted by advertising we will add to our prosperity."

Mr. Reilly said Appleton and Outagamie-co, because they are on Highway 15, are direct beneficiaries of the enormous business which advertising will bring into the state.

Newly elected officers of the club, headed by Dr. W. J. Frawley as president, took their places at the end of the meeting. Dr. Frawley will announce his committee appointments soon, possibly at the next meeting. A meeting of officers will be held this week to elect two additional members of the board of directors.

Now is the Time to Build.

If you are going to put a new sleeping porch on your house or lay a new walk, this is the time of year to do it.

You may have in mind putting up a new fence, or new clothes posts in the backyard.

All of these things and a hundred more can be done economically with concrete, in a minimum of time and without the necessity of calling in help from the outside. With simple instructions you can mix the concrete in proper proportions, build the necessary forms, and set the mixture.

The instructions you need are contained in a revised edition of the concrete booklet, which is offered free to any of our readers. Pioneers Of Stephensville Honored On Fiftieth Anniversary Of Wedding

BY W. F. WINSEY

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Main, two of the pioneer settlers of Outagamie-co, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at the auditorium at Stephensville Monday More than 100 guests were present from Stephensville, Shiocton, Hortonville, Clintonville and Appleton, and Escanaba, Mich. and Chicago.

Dinner was served at the hall at noon and supper at 6 o'clock. The remaining time was spent with vocal and instrumental music and general merrymaking, and with talks of reminiscence. An address fitted to the occasion was made by Judge A. M. Spencer of Appleton, a first cousin of Mr. Main. One part of the ceremonies was the renewal of the vows of marriage by the aged couple.

The principals in the golden wedding ceremonies lived almost continuously since their marriage in and near Stephensville.

Mr. Main was one of a family consisting of one sister and four brothers who with their parents emigrated from Apple River, Ill., in the year 1856 to a point north of Shiocton, then a wilderness that concealed a few sawmills, lumber shanties and occasional cabin of an early settler.

MR. AND MRS. A. B. MAIN

TOOK OVER FARM

Blanchard Spencer, father of Judge Spencer, induced the family to leave Illinois and locate at their earliest home. It consisted of a farm with a small amount of land cleared, and with a cabin 12 feet square, walled with boards. A. B. Main attended school in winter and helped his father in summer, but left the farm after a few years because only a scant living could be made due to the swampy condition of the land. He was attracted to the woods, where he worked at lumbering until he was obliged to return home to run the farm. He failed after five years of experimenting, largely due to the high water and sold the farm to his brothers, Wallace and Melvin.

While working the farm in 1874, however, he was married to Miss Zelpha Mars, who had moved with her parents from Indiana while quite young to Fond du Lac. From there she moved to the home of William Hunter of Shiocton to take employment in his household and developed an acquaintance with Main. Their marriage took place two years after the homestead had been purchased. They worked the farm together for three years and Mrs. Main took charge each winter while her husband worked in the woods in order to make both ends meet.

Failure forced them to leave the farm and the Mains then drove to Florence where they worked together as cooks in lumber shanties during winters. Mr. Main worked in the iron mines and his wife cooked for the crew.

BOUGHT NEW LAND

After Mr. Main had worked 25 winters in the woods, he and his wife decided to return to farming. Gilbert Main, a brother, was operating a farm a mile southwest of Stephensville, and a farm owned by Robert Alone across the way was for sale The Mains set out for Stephensville and bought it. On this farm, purchased in 1882, Mr. and Mrs. Main withstood the hardships and enjoyed the pleasures of farming for 30 years. During all those years they made friends and prospered. Twelve years ago they moved to the village of Stephensville where they have since resided.

Mr. Main has one brother living in Escanaba; three nephews, Ora Clyde, and Bert and a host of second and third cousins some of whom are living in Shiocton. Clyde Main occupies the Main homestead near Stephensville and Bert is on a farm in Bovina south of Shiocton.

Will Attend Convention

Dr. Eliza M. Culbertson will attend the national coonvention of osteopaths at Kirksville, Mo., the week of May 25 Wisiconsin will be represented in a large parade on May 26 when the osteopaths of every state will have floats, as well as all of the colleges, hospitals and sanitariums. Wisconsin has eleven young people studying osteopathy in Kirksville.

GOSPEL TEAM CONDUCTS SERVICE AT WEYAUWEGA

The gospel team of the Y. M. C. A. composed of Prof. Robert H. Hannum, W. E. Smith, George F. Werner and George C. Nixon, conducted a union service at the Presbyterian church at Weyauwega Sunday evening. The team was entertained at the home of M. Ritchie, cousin of Mr. Smith.

A large audience attended the services. George W. Werner presided. George C. Nixon sang three solos and Prof. R. H. Hannum gave a talk on the religions of Asia as he knew them and contrasted them with Christianity. W. E. Smith discussed the challenge of America, pointing out how America should help Christianize the eastern countries.

CAR STALLS ON TRACKS; ENGINEER STOPS TRAIN

Killing his engine on the railroad track an unidentified automobile driver narrowly escaped being struck by passenger train No. 206 southbound of the Northwestern Railway company at College-ave crossing Sunday morning. The flagman saw the automobile driver approaching and motioned to him to cross ahead of the train. Engine trouble delayed him, however, and the flagman gave him a second signal to stop. He paid no heed to it and kept on going. On reaching the crossing his engine stalled and the flagman then signaled the engineer who stopped his train within a few feet of the automobile.

SPEEDS TO HIS SICK WIFE; CASE DROPPED

A sick wife is a pressing case, so Judge A. M. Spencer ruled in municipal court Monday morning when he remitted the fine in the case of Ernest Kranzusch, 406 Outagamie-st, who was arrested on Saturday by Joseph Bayer, city motorcycle officer, for exceeding the legal speed limits. Kranzusch was observed driving 28 miles an hour on College-ave. When the defendant said he had been called home from work to the bedside of his sick wife, the judge dismissed the case upon payment of the costs only.

Don't Suffer From Neuritis

Get rid of your pains and aches for good by restoring the weak, inflamed nerves to sound condition. Medicines containing narcotics, bromides or coal tar products will not help you. They merely relieve for the moment, and their use is always injurious.

Procure a bottle of Eopa Neuritis Tablets from any good druggist and take according to directions. You will be surprised at the results, almost from the very start. Pain, sourness and inflammation will usually disappear in the shortest possible time under the soothing, healing influence of this wonderfully effective treatment.

Eopa Neuritis Tablets are guaranteed to be absolutely harmless—free from narcotics and heart-depressing drugs. They go to the very source of the disease and help to remove it in a safe, natural way. Endorsed by many leading physicians. Price $1.00. Sold in Appleton by Voigt Drug Store and all other leading druggists. Boericke & Runyon Co., Mfrs., San Francisco. adv.

The Dividing Line Between Comfort and Discomfort

The heating plant is seldom to blame for cold rooms. It is the walls and roof that permit the heat to leak out that make your home uncomfortable. Every chilly morning your rooms are cold, every change in temperature outside is quickly felt in your living rooms, because the walls and roof do not stop the heat and cold.

The sure way to remedy this is to put Flax-li-num in the walls and roof.

Flax-li-num is a felt-like material, made from tough flax fibres. It is built in between the outer and inner walls, and as a lining to the roof. It resists the passage of heat.

Saves ⅓ of fuel

Houses with Flax-li-num require 33⅓ per cent less heat than non-insulated houses. So Flax-li-num usually pays for itself out of fuel savings within three years. It adds only 1 to 3 per cent to house cost.

Your house will be refreshingly cool in summer if you have Flax-li-num. Even the upstairs, which is always the hottest part.

When you build, buy or rent

Write for copy of booklet, "For Comfort and Economy," and ask us for complete information about the use and cost of Flax-li-num for your home.

Good Ideas For Making Of Sandwich

Fillings Usually Are the Same —Size Varies for Kind and Occasion

If the bread knife be sharp and the butter well creamed there should be no difficulty in making sandwiches.

All kinds of bread can be used for sandwiches, alone or in combination. The bread cuts better if a day old.

The purpose for which a sandwich is needed determines the size. A boy's school sandwich will reach proportions very differnet from a dainty afternoon tea sandwich. A picnic sandwich is something else again and the luncheon sandwich answers another purpose.

The fillings for sandwiches are much the same for any occasion. The size of the sandwich chiefly varies.

A sweet sandwich is as desirable in the lunch box as on the after-tea cart and a piquant meat filling is always good.

No matter what the mission of the sandwich it must be neat and semmetrical. The crusts should be removed and the butter in such a creamy state that the bread will not be torn in the spreading.

Many fillings are made smooth and creamy with butter. If this is the case the bread may not be buttered. Ordinarily a thin, even coating of butter prevents the bread from absorbing the filling and if sandwiches are to placed for any length of time they will be more satisfactory of buttered bread.

COMBINATION FILLING

Five tablespoons butter, 5 tablespoons minced cold boiled ham, 8 tablespoons minced cooked chicken, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, ¼ teaspoon praprika.

Work butter to a cream with a fork. Add remaining ingredients and mix smooth. Spread on thin slices of bread and press firmly together.

A sandwich is often garnished in a most appetizing way. Sandwiches made of nut bread, thinly sliced and spread with butter can be made more attractive to look at if a whole half of a nut meat is placed in the center of each sandwich. Hold the nut in place with a bit of butter.

JELLY SANDWICHES

Cu thin slices of bread in round shapes with a dougnut center. Cut the same number of slices with a round cutter the same size but without the center of the doughnuts cutter. Spread the whole rounds of bread with creamed butter. Fill with jelly and cover with the ring of buttered bread. The jelly should be beaten until it spreads easily and finely chopped nuts can be added if desired.

PIMENTO SANDWICHES

Pimento sandwiches are shaped in the same way that the jelly sandwiches are. Spread the circular pieces of bread with pimento butter press the rings of bread in place and put a thin slice of olive stuffed with pimento in the hollow of the ring.

To make pimento butter work four tablespoons butter to a cream with a wooden spoon. Rub two canned pimentos through a fine sieve. Work into butter, beating until smooth. Season with salt to taste.

Household Suggestions

FRYING FAT

Never attempt to fry in fat that is saturated with water as it is from cooking a watery vegetable like eggplant. The result is an absolutely indigestable article.

MAKING JELLY MOLDS

Run cold water over the dish on which you are to empty a mold of jelly and it will not slide.

CHEESE OMELET

Cheese omelet and graham bread sandwiches make a well balanced lunch.

SERVING SOUP

To serve with soup split common crackers and spread thickly with butter and bake in a pan until they are a delicate brown.

PREPARING BEEF

Before using beef, always wipe it with a cheese cloth wrung out of cold water, but never let it stand in cold water as this will draw out the juices.

CANNED VEGETABLES

Canned beets and canned string

beans cut up together are served with a large helping of Russian dressing.

CLEANING RUBBER

Kerosene dissolves rubber and if used to clean it, as in the case of a wringer, the kerosene should be immediately removed.

THERE'S A STYLE OF BOBBED HAIR FOR MOST EVERY TYPE OF FACE

The French woman who strives for distinction, likes the side part bob, very fluffy and full at the sides, and giving a vivacious, elfin appearance. Evelyn Kindler, actress in "Lollipop," is shown wearing it.

Charles shears the heads of the 400, and he ought to know.

Within the next month, predicts this connoisseur of feminine hair styles, 100,000 new recruits will be added to the army of 240,000 bobbed heads already mobilized in Greater New York.

"The thing," declares Charles, "is the individual style. In the old days the Egyptians, Aztec, Mexican or Hottentot princess who wore her hair short followed one general pattern. The long and the short, the broad and the thin heads followed the same sliced-off line.

"Today a woman figures out her type, tries several barbers and several bobs usually, before she settles upon the one that is particularly her own style.

"There's the Dutch bob, ideal for the round faced little-girl type with straight hair and lots of pep; there's the baby doll bob, the pineapple bob for the girl with curls who wants the suggestion of much hair; there's the boy bob and any number of other styles, each one different, each one suited to a peculiar type."

Selection of a type of bob, says Charles, is as important to the woman who would enchance her charm to the utmost as the selection of the color or cut of a gown. And any bob, just so it is interesting and distinctive, is bound to be in style.

Plan Outside Planting Carefully If New Home Is To Look Beautiful

Even more important than the inside decoration of your new house is the outside painting. This will last as long as the house itself and will constitute part of the real estate value of your place—not only lasting with the house, but increasing in value—deteriorates with the wear and tare of years.

When you begin settling your new home, make a careful plan of your new grounds as well. This will be of untold value when you actually begin you plantings.

Let one or two little green vines start growth on your stone foundations, place a few quick growing shrubs at the corners of the porch, or some dark shadowery evergreens at the door, and your mere house is transformed at once into an inviting and artistic home!

In these fenceless days it is taken for granted that your grounds will be graded, the lawn enriched and seeded to grass, and a neat hedge set out around your property almost as soon as the plumbers and plasterers complete the inside work. Privet is very popular nowadays for hedge planting; or barberry, which is very effective for hedge work either where it is kept trimmed or untrimmed. If you are fond of evergreens, which are so satisfactory in both winter and summer, you can make the hedge of American Arborvitae, Norway Spruce or Hemlock.

As soon as the grading is completed, a few shade trees should be set out along the sidewalk or road to grow up with the years and to benefit your community which will be sure to appreciate them. Maples are always excellent for this purpose, giving sure and certain results. Or, if more originality is desired, a row of Elms is most satisfactory.

For immediate results around the house and grounds, shrubbery plantings are particularly convenient. A group may be planted at either corner of the house foundations, and extended with lower growing varieties beneath the windows. Other shrubbery groupings may be placed at either side of the entrance to the grounds. These furnish a definite marking for the path or drive, which may be seen from far off, and which will furnish a good landmark on dark nights for pedestrians of motor. It is wise to consult some nearby Nursery as to the best quick growing shrubs you should use for these purposes.

One or two small ornamental trees either flowering or evergreen, planted at either side of the piazza entrance, will give a style and finish to the whole house.

Do not neglect the vine planting to tone down the insistent newness of your home. You will find many quick growing varieties of climbing vines such as clematis, honeysuckle or wistaria, or if you want something to cling to the house itself, try Boston Ivy. (Ampelopsis Veitchii).

A few fruit and nut trees should not be forgotten. Within two or three years they will begin to reward you for your very slight trouble in setting them out now. Also a few berry bushes—blackberries, raspberries, gooseberries — should be planted near the garage or at the back of the garden. Do not fail to set out some grape vines either, to grow over the back porch or garage, —or let the carpenters make a simple trellis for it before they leave.

New York.—Roaming around Broadway for a week, I renewed my acquaintance with Gloria Swanson, the movie actress, who lives in an East 52nd street hotel, and who has been repeatedly rumored as having died. My faith in survival of the spirit is great, but I find it difficult to believe materialization has reached so fine a point. No, I didn't pinch her, as many since have asked me, but I'm convinced she's alive nevertheless.......

Saw a thrilling melodram reminding me of the 10-20-30-cent days. It was "The Dust Heap," getting its name from a saloon in the Yukon, "where the dust heap of humanity" is blown. Just as the villain is about to drag the "gal" away, lightening strikes the place......

Also saw "Cobra," a new drama in which a young sheik makes a rendez vous with his partner's wife which results in her death, and then the question remains should the shiek tell his partner? which he very wisely decides not to do......

Heard that Benny Leonard has started making a series of 12 moving pictures, which probably means the fighting public will not see Benny's lightweight title at stake this summer, though he may defend it....

Read Henry H. Curran's article in The Saturday Evening Post, urging exclusion of all immigrants or cutting the number to a very, very few, and the more I think of it, the more I'm convinced that Curran gets great enjoyment from his own voice....

Read a very good biography of William Gibbs McAdoo, by Mary Synon, a volume which she calls "McAdoo" (Bobbs-Merrill) and learned many things about the prospective presidential nominee, the most surprising being that he credits General Sherman's destructive march to the sea "with whatever character" he has developed, because Sherman's wild march played many hardships and privation upon the people near Marietta, Ga., where he was born in 1863, and McAdoo thinks that character is only developed through the stress of suffering and poverty.

FASHION HINTS

FELT HATS

A very stunning hat of brick red felt is trimmed with small yellow and green apples.

SILK SCARFS

The newest scarfs of knitted silk have monograms in cut work embroidered near the fringed hem.

PARIS COATS

Most attractive coats from Paris come in soft wools with an inner lining which fastens over and gives the effect of a dress beneath. Usually the coat is of plain color and the lining is checked or plaid.

TUCK-IN BLOUSE

There was a time when practically every smart blouse was an overblouse, but the tailored suit has forced the return of the tuck-in since it is more in keeping with the severe lines.

NEW TUNICS

Many tunics often dwell in harmony on the same frock and give the effect of shaded material by graduating in one color as well as in length.

SHORTER SKIRTS

Skirts get shorter as the days lengthen. From ten to twelve inches from the floor is now the correct length for tailored and sport things and from eight to ten formal gowns.

STRIPED GIRDLES

Roman striped girdles and scarfs are used effectively to make a dark frock more festive, and turbans and handbags of the same material are equally obliging.

The Tangle

LETTER FROM SALLY ATHERTON TO BEATRICE GRIMSHAW, CONTINUED

You know, Bee, Sam wouldn't show himself to any other persons as untidy as he does to me for anything in the world, yet I can fully understand his attitude and if he were alone he would be all right.

This may seem to you a very foolish little thing, and perhaps there are people in the world who love each other so devotedly, so passionately, that they can clothe each other exquisitely in their imaginations and blind their material eyes to all slovenliness and imperfection. I can't do it.

All this, my dear, is a kind of prelude to tell you I think Sam and I have come to the parting of the ways. We haven't told each other this yet, but I am sure I bore him quite as much as he does me.

Hee had a sort of shamed feeling that will not let him confess this to me, but I know when he begins to tell me what a wonderful wife I was to him during all the time he was blind, he is trying to salve his conscience for not being able to keep from thinking now that he wishes I were miles away.

We never did have anything in common except the glamor of sex attraction. Isn't nature implacably malevolent? She pays no attention to our cries—afterward. She shows no pity for our unhappy state. She must know that after she has brought us together and her work is done she sentenced us to long years of unhappiness and hatred, and yet she goes her way mating and making other people unhappy.

Yes, Bee, I am very bitter and I am riding my hobby perhaps to a fall. Anyway I have decided that Sam and I are ruining both our lives by trying to live together longer. He is growing belligerent and arrogant and I am growing morose and cynical. I am losing my sense of humor, which is fatal. Sam never had one.

Now I have a change to go into the office of Leslie's husband, Jack Prescott. This seems a way out—at least, it would seem so if it wasn't Leslie's husband. I'd rather be among strangers.

Now, my dear, I come to the crux of the whole matter. All the other stuff that I have been writing to you in only a prelude. Would you go?

How silly of me to ask when our temperaments are so different? But would you advise me to do it?

If I can go there without making Leslie feel that she must look after my social well-being I should like to do it. In other words, if I can go as a stranger and just live my life as I want to, it looks to me now as though it would be ideal.

By the way, dear, when are you going to Los Angeles and Marry Dick and settle down? Perhaps for you marriage would be all right, but for me no more marriage—at least not for a while.

Affectionately yours,

SALLY.

Adventures Of The Twins

IN THE BAKERMAN'S KITCHEN

"And now," said the bakerman in Beanstalk Land, "I shall ice this nice big birthday cake I have just made for Bouncing Billy, and put his name on it in pink and green gumdrops. Never had there been so fine a cake in all Beanstalk Land!"

So he put on a kettle of sugar and water and boiled it, then whipped up the whites of four eggs until they looked like a snow drift, and then he poured the hot sirup into the eggs and beat and beat and beat until the icing was just right. After that he stirred in vanilla and a drop or two of almond flavoring, and it was all ready to spread on the cake.

Everything he did was watched carefully by four eyes. Two of them were Nancy's and two of them were Nick's, and if you would try from now until next Christmas, you never could guess where they were.

They were on the screen door, hanging on for dear life, like two little flies. They were skipping by when they smelled all the delicious smells coming out of the giant bakerman's kitchen. So they stopped. And as a giant's screen door is as easy for children to climb, as your screen door is for flies to climb, up they went.

"Um yum!" said Nick. "I wish we could lick the bowl!"

"Look here, Nick, here's a hole," said Nancy. "Let's crawl through."

Quick as a wink they ducked through the hole in the screen door, and there they were right inside the bakerman's kitchen.

Curiosity was too much for them and they climbed up on a chair and thence onto the big table. They were just in time, for the bakerman was spreading and spreading and spreading the thick white icing all over the cake with a great silver knife.

After that he cut the pink and green gumdrops into slices and made a posy of pink flowers with green leaves. All around the edge he wrote "Bouncing Billy."

Nancy and Nick were perched up on the edge of the icing bowl by this time, and when the last bit of gum drop was stuck on and the cake set in the window to cool the same idea occurred to them both at the same time.

Why not lick the bowl now!

They always did at home, and there was a hundred times as much left in this one. And it smelled so very, very tempting!

"Come on," whispered Nick, pinching Nancy's sleeve.

And as Nancy didn't have to be coaxed, the two of them jumped right down inside the bowl and began to gobble icing as though their lives depended upon it.

And they ate and ate and ate until it was just too dreadful to talk about.

So they crawled to the top of the bowl and gave a jump. But the bakerman had put a piece of flypaper right there! And they landed in the middle of it.

How they got off I cannot tell you, but it must have been the magic shoes.

Anyway, there they were, sick inside, and all sticky outside, and in a dreadful condition.

"I don't like Beanstalk Land so very well," said Nick faintly.

"Neither do I," agreed Nancy.

Bit it was all because they were such pigs.

Don't Go When the Signal Is "Stop"

CHILDREN cannot continue spending great energy in their play if that energy is not being replaced by energizing foods. And when parents stop to consider this fact they must become thoughtful about choosing foods which contain energizing food elements. One such element, Dextrose, is essential. It stores up energy and rugged health in all the body's blood and tissue cells.

It is also interesting to know that Karo, America's most popular and most delicious syrup, contains a large percentage of body-building Dextrose. And this, of course, explains why children thrive on Karo. Blue Label and Red Label Karo, by the way, are equally nutritious.

SO BIG

By Edna Ferber

In the midst of this drab assemblage there entered late and rustlingly a tall, slow-moving woman in a city-bought cloak and bonnet quite unlike the vintage millinery of High Prairie. As she came down the aisle Selina thought she was like a full-sailed frigate. An ample woman, with a fine fair skin and a ripe red mouth; a high firm bosom and great thighs that moved rhythmically, slowly. She had thick, insolent eyelids. Her hands, as she turned the leaves of her hymn book, were smooth and white. As she entered there was a little rustle throughout the congregation; a craning of necks. Though she was bustled and flounced and panniered, you thought, curiously enough, of those lolling white-fleshed and unconventional ladies whom the sixteenth century painters were always portraying as having their toe nails cut with nothing on.

"Who's that?" wispered Selina to Maartje.

"Widow Paarlenburg. She is rich like anything."

"Yes?" Selina was fascinated.

"Look once how she makes eyes at him."

"At him? Who? Who?"

"Pervus DeJong. By Gerrit Pon he is sitting with the blue shirt and sad looking so."

Selina craned, peered. "The—oh—he's very good looking, isn't he?"

"Sure. Widow Paarlenburg is stuck on him. See how she—Sh-sh-sh: —Reverend Dekker looks at us. I tell you after."

Selina decided she'd come to church oftener. The service went on, dull, heavy. It was in English and Dutch. She heard scarcely a word of it. The Widow Paarlenburg and this Pervus DeJong occupied her thoughts. She decided, without malice, that the widow resembled one of the sleekest of the pink porkers rooting in Klaas Pool's barnyard, waiting to be cut into Christmas meat.

The Widow Paarlenburg turned and smiled. Her eyes were slippery (Selina's term). Her mouth became loose and wide with one corner sliding down a trifle into something very like a leer.

With one surge the Dutch Reformed congregation leaned forward to see how Pervus DeJong would respond to this public mark of favour. His gaze was stern, unsmiling. His eyes were fixed on that extremely dull gentleman, the Reverend Dekker.

"He's annoyed," thought Selina, and was pleased at the thought. "Well, I may not be a widow, but I'm sure that's not the way." And then: "Now I wonder what it's like when he smiles."

According to fiction as Selina had found it in the Fireside Companion and elsewhere, he should have turned at this moment, irresistibly drawn by the magnetism of her gaze, and smiled a rare sweet smile that lighted up his stern face. But he did not. He yawned suddenly and capaciously. The Reformed Dutch congregation leaned back feeling cheated. Handsome, certainly, Selina reflected. But then, probably Klaas Pool, too, had been handsome a few years ago.

The service ended, there was much talk of the weather, seedlings, stock, the approaching holiday season. Maartje, her Sunday dinner heavy on her mind, was elbowing her way up the aisle. Here and there she introduced Selina briefly to a woman friend. "Mrs. Vander Slijs, meet school teacher."

"Aggie's mother?" Selina would begin, primly, only to be swept along by Maartje on her way to the door. "Mrs. Von Minnen meet school teacher is Mrs. Von Minnen." They regarded her with a grim gaze. Selina would smile and nod rather nervously, feeling young, frivolous, and somehow guilty.

When with Maartje, she reached the church porch Pervus DeJong was unhitching the dejected horse that was harnessed to his battered and lopsided cart. The animal stood with four feet bunched together in a drooping and pathetic attitude and seemed inevitably meant for mating with this decrepit vehicle. DeJong untied the reins quickly, and was about to step into the sagging conveyance when the Widow Paarlenburg sailed down the church steps with admirable speed for one so amply proportioned. She made straight for him, skirts billowing, flounces flying, plumes waving. Maartje clutched Selina's arm. "Look how she makes! She asks him to eat Sunday dinner I bet you! See once how he makes with his head no."

Selina—and the whole congregation unashamedly watching—could indeed see how he made with his head no. His whole body seemed set in negation—the fine head, the broad patient shoulders, the muscular powerful legs in their ill-fitting Sunday blacks. He shook his head, gathered up the reins, and drove away, leaving the Widow Paarlenburg to carry off with such bravado as she could muster this public flouting in full sight of the Dutch Reformed congregation of High Prairie. It must be said that she actually achieved this feat with a rather magnificent composure. Her round pink face, as she turned away, was placid; her great cowlike eyes mild. Selina abondoned the pink porker simile for that of a great Persian cat, full-fed and treacherous, its claws all sheathed in velvet. The widow stepped agilely into her own neat phaeton with its sleek horse and was off down the hard snowless road, her head high.

"Well!" exclaimed Selina, feeling as though she had witnessed the first act of an exciting play. And breathed deeply. So, too, did the watching congregation, so that the widow could said to have driven off in quite a gust.

As they jogged home in the Pool farm wagon Maartje told her tale with a good deal of savour.

Pervous DeJong had been left a widower two years before. Within a month of that time Leendert Paarlenburg had died, leaving to his widow the richest and most profitable farm in the whole community. Pervus DeJong, on the contrary, through inheritance from his father, old Johannes, possessed a scant twenty-five acres of the worst lowland—practically the only lowland—in all High Prairie. The acreage was notoriously barren. In spring, the critical time for seedlings and early vegetable crops, sixteen of the twenty-five were likely to be under water. Pervus DeJong patiently planted, sowed, gathered crops, hauled them to market; seemed still never to get on in this thrifty Dutch community where getting on was so common a trait as to be no longer thought a virtue. Luck and nature seems to work against him. His seedlings proved unfertile; his stock was always ailing; his cabbages were worm-infested; snout-beetle bored his rhubarb. When he planted largely of spinach, hoping for a wet spring, the season was dry. Did he turn the following year to sweet potatoes, oil auguries pointing to a dry spring and summer, the summer proved the wettest in a decade. Insects and fungi seemed drawn to his fields as by a malevolent force. Had he been small, puny, and insignificant his bad luck would have called forth contemptuous pity. But there was about him the lovableness and splendour of a stricken giant. To complete his discomfort, his household was inadequately ministered by an elderly and rheumatic female connection whose pies and bread were the scandal of the neighbouring housewives.

Bud Gorman Attracts Praise Of Prominent Writer In Michigan

Wisconsin Heavyweight Has Won Every Fight in Last Two Years, Defeating Topnotchers of Country.

Sergeant Ray Smith was due to arrive in Appleton Tuesday for his ten-round battle with Bud Gorman, who is expected in this city Wednesday. These two heavyweights are among the greatest ring talent of the country today, and are known to all foiers of the sport. Smith is a great drawing card in the east, but Gorman's record has put him in the first rank as far as popularity in the west and middle west is concerned, and between them, the two sluggers have drawn the attention of the whole country to Appleton on Friday.

GORMAN

In the last two years Gorman has won every fight in which he engaged. He knocked out Jack McDonald in seven rounds, won a newspaper decision from Harry Drake in eight, and took ten-round decisions from Joe Lohman, Homer Smith, Billy Shade, Young Bob Fitzsimmons, Captain Bob Roper, and Sailor Tom Maxted. Try to pick an easy one out of his victims.

GORMAN DRAWS PRAISE

Emerson Dickerson, one of the best known sport writers of Michigan who refereed Gorman's last two fights, has the following to say in the Grand Rapids Herald:

"Bud Gorman, the Neenah heavyweight, who beat Homer Smith, Billy Shade and Capt. Bob Roper in bouts at Kalamazoo, Joe Lohman and Sailor Maxted at Muskegon, during the past few months, is one of the most promising boxers in the heavyweight division who have fought their way into prominence during the past year. When he fought Joe Lohman here last summer during the annual reunion ow the 32nd division, Bud was strictly a one-handed fighter, his right being of little use to him.

"During the past two or three months the Badger stater has developed a right hand that is dangerous every minute of the time. Coupled with one of his best left hands in the business, Gorman's recently developed right has made him a wonderfully improved boxer who is apt to be knocking at the door leading to the first flight of heavyweights in a very short time. Bud saw service overseas with the 32nd division and might have won the heavyweight championship of the A. E. F., but for parental objection to the boxing at that time.

"His clean cut victory over Capt. Bob Roper at a time when Bob was fighting in about the best form of his career clearly showed that Gorman would almost certainly have beaten Bob Martin, who won the A. E. F. championship, had he opposed Martin at that time. Roper twice defeated Martin when the A. E. F. champion was in his prime. Bud Gorman's improvement during the past six months was the greatest the writer has ever seen a boxer display in that space of time.

"Gorman was Tom Gibbons' chief sparring partner when Tom was training for his Shelby, Mont., bout with Heavyweight Champion Jack Dempsey. He fought Harry Drake, an English heavyweight who toured the country with Jess Willard, in the Shelby semi-windup, making a chopping block of Drake. Watch Gorman climb if he is not shoved ahead too fast."

Tickets have been placed on sale at Bellings drug store, Miller and Rule soft drink parlors, Appleton Sport Shop and Myse and Jones soft drink parlor.

Gloves for the windup have been donated by the Appleton Sport Shop.

GIBBONS JUDGES OLYMPIC BATTLES

By Associated Press

Chicago—Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul lightheavyweight, in training at Grand Beach, Mich., for his bout May 31, with George Carpentier at Michigan City, Ind., will leave his camp Wednesday to officiate as referee in the Olympic games elimination bouts aboard the U. S. S. Commodore here.

The principal bout on the card will be six rounds between Jim Flynn, middleweight champion of Chanute Field, and "Kid" Voutbert, same class champion of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Winners will be eligible for competition next week in Boston where the American boxers to compete in France will be named.

Georges Carpentier, due to arrive in New York Tuesday, is scheduled to come here as soon as train schedules permit.

Memphis, Tenn.— Frank "Kid" Dugan, Memphis welterweight, was awarded the decision over Bobby Greene, San Antonio, Tex., after eight rounds.

BROKAW HALL MEN ORGANIZE INDOOR BASEBALL LEAGUE

Collegians Also Plan "Barnyard Golf" Tourney to Start Next Week

Indoor baseball and "barnyard golf" have taken their place among intermural sports of Lawrence college. The men of Brokaw hall have organized a singles horseshoe tournament. The baseball league is scheduled to start playing Tuesday evening in Jones park, and thereafter will play every Tuesday and Thursday at 6:30 P. M.

The entry list for the horseshoe tournament opened Monday, and entries will be taken until Saturday.

Both sports have found great favor among the collegians. They will be especially popular in the men's dormitory because they are planned to create a feeling of greater fellowship. Fraternities and other college societies all have teams of their own, while most of the Brokaw men depended entirely upon their own efforts for recreation and amusement. The twilight league and horseshoe tournament will bring them together and give them a chance to meet outside the classrooms.

RIPON NETTERS HERE SATURDAY

Lawrence Gymnasts Turn Out to Condition Courts for Tourney

Ripon and Lawrence tennis teams will clash in a tournament preliminary to the first annual Fox river Valley conference track and field meet here Saturday on the Lawrence courts. The tennis matches will be played in the morning, while the track meet is scheduled for the afternoon.

Members of the various gymnasium classes of Lawrence have turned out to put the courts in condition for the summer, and have undertaken extensive repairs. Soft spots have been dug up and refilled with clay, and although the work has been handicapped considerably by wet weather, the men have cimpleted most of the preliminary work and are ready to start rolling the courts.

100 BOYS, 25 MEN REGISTER FOR "Y" SWIMMING COURSE

Businessmen Will Be Given Another Chance to Choose Convenient Classes

One hundred boys and more than 25 men had enrolled in the Y. M. C. A. swimming classes for non-swimmers when the entry lists were closed Monday afternoon. The registeration of boys for the instruction exceeded all expectations, but the men have been slow in entering. This was due in many cases to the uncertainty as to the time of the classes, but now that a definite schedule has been arranged, the businessmen will be given another opportunity to enter. Men's classes have been arranged for Monday and Thursday from 8:15 to 8:45 P. M.; Tuesday and Thursday, from 5:00 to 5:30 P. M., and Tuesday and Thursday from 12:00 to 12:30 at noon.

It is expected that the noon and 5 o'clock classes will attract at least double the present number of men.

SPECIAL PERIOD IS SET

The boys' classes will be somewhat crowded, and to eliminate this as much as possible the 10-year-old boys who have registered will be given special instruction. Letters will be sent to these boys to notify them of the class in which they have been placed. They will meet for the first time at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Instead of giving them four periods like the older boys, they will be given two. Being placed in a class by themselves will give the youngsters a better chance to accustom themselves to the water, and profit by the elementary instruction which will be gone over more quickly in the case of the older boys.

Following is the schedule for boys:

11 to 12 years, inclusive, Monday and Thursday from 4:30 to 5:00 P. M.

13 to 16 years, inclusive, Tuesday and Friday from 4:30 to 5 P. M.

TILDEN MAY PLAY IN DAVIS MATCH

Champion Will Withdraw Resignation When National Association Acts

New York—Virtual assurance that William T. Tilden, II, would be a member of this year's Davis cup tennis team was contained in the announcement Tuesday that the national champion would withdraw his resignation the moment the United States Lawn Tennis association called a special meeting to reconsider the player-writer rule which next year would move Tilden from the amateur to the professional ranks.

Late Monday night, George W. Wightman, president of the U. S. L. T. A., announced he would recommend that such a meeting be called by the executive committee of the association. Tilden also agreed to abide by the meeting's decision if the vote upheld the player-writer interpretation which has caused such furore in tennis circles since it was adopted in March.

The champion's statement came as an unexpected development in the controversy and gave the first definite intimation that he would alter his attitude on the player-writer rule under any circumstances.

SECOND WARD TEAM BEATS THIRD, 14-9

Second Ward Cardinals Monday afternoon broke up the winning streak of the Third Ward Tootsies, when they vanquished the Tootsies, 14 to 9, on the reservoir diamond. The victors hopped off to a good start when they jumped Fountain's delivery for six runs in the first three innings. The Third Warders used three pitchers after this poor start, but all of them were ineffective against the heavy hitting Cards.

Wiggins tamed the losers up to the eighth when passes, an error and two hits netted them five runs.

ILLNESS FORCES ZWICK TO CANCEL CONLEY BOUT

Milwaukee—Jack Zwick, the Kaukauna welterweight, who was to have met Roy Conley in the semi-windup to the Harry Kahn-Joe Jawson contest at the Juneau theater on May 19, was forced to cancel the engagement, it was announced by his manager, Ferd Saddy, on Monday. Zwick has been ill for several days and decided he could not get into the best of shape for the scrap. Kahn and Jawson have settled down to training for the quarrel. The remainder of the card will be completed before Wednesday, the promoter announces.

Columbus Ga.—Jackie Clark of Allentown, Pa., won a decision over Bobby Marriott of Fort Benning, in ten rounds.

Pittsburg — Harry Greb, middleweight titleholder, was awarded the decision over Pal Reed, Boston, after ten rounds.

Uncle Robbie

WILBERT ROBINSON

The kindly old gentleman you see here, gentle reader, is none other than Uncle Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Uncle Wilbert is getting along in years. The bright youthful sparkle has left his eyes and he has to wear glasses to see his athletes.

Which is not so surprising.

The fans have to use binoculars to see them most of the time.

HELEN WILLS SAILS TO BATTLE LENGLEN

By Associated Press

New York—Helen Wills, 18-year-old girl tennis champion of the country, will sail Wednesday on the Berengaria for Eufope where she will attempt to wrest the Olympic championship from Susanne Lenglen of France. She will be accompanied by her mother.

Miss Wills had her first workout in more than a week Monday at the courts of the Westside Tennis club where she played a practice set. Experts who saw her win the national championship from Molla Mallory were of the opinion that her ground strokes and back hand had improved and that her foot work had increased in speed since that time.

PREAKNESS PAST OPENS IN EARNEST

Louisville, Ky. — The Preakness Past, the annual derby invasion of Louisville, got under way in earnest Tuesday.

Resident turf students together with members of the derby advance guard, will be given an opportunity to watch classic candidates work a mile route in the "derby trial" a $2,000 purse event for three-year-olds Tuesday.

Added interest attaches to the event because Black Gold, winner of the Louisiana derby, and unbeaten as a three-year-old, is entered in what will be his initial start here. Wild Aster, another scheduled starter, is well liked, as is King Gorin II. Princess Doreen Glide, Dudley, Colonel Gilmore and Cloister, also are entered.

Do you know Baseball?

by Dilly Evans

QUESTIONS

1. If a batsman, after missing the third strike, starts for his bench and goes about 15 feet in that direction, then discovers the catcher has missed the ball, what are the baserunners' rights? In this case the batsman retouches home plate and runs to first base, which he reaches before the catcher can throw the ball to the first baseman. Would he be out or safe?—K. D. B.

2. Is it possible for a pitcher to make a balk when there are no men on bases?— N. S.

ANSWERS

1. Such a play often comes up in a major league game. It is not necessary that the runner return and touch the plate when he sees the ball has gotten away from the catcher. He can start from wherever he is when he discovers the catcher has erred on the ball. Major league umpires do not regard that he has run out of line in first starting for the bench, but simply has made the distance to first that much longer. In the case cited the runner was safe.

2. It is possible to make a balk without any runners on the bases. An illegal delivery can be made, which would be called a ball even though it passed over the plate at the proper height. If the batter elected to hit such a delivered ball whatever happened would be regarded as legal.

PRIZES ARRIVE FOR FIRST F. R. V. TRACK CARNIVAL

Competing Schools Begin to Send in Lists of Entrants for Meet

Medals, cups and banners which will be awarded as prizes in the First Annual Fox River Valley High School conference track and field meet to be held under the auspices of Lawrence college here on May 17, have arrived and are on display in the show windows of the Appleton merchants whose generosity supplied them. They may be seen in the windows of the following business places: Thiede Good Clothes, Hughes Clothing Co., L. Bonini Jr. Meat Market, Wettengel and Wettengel, Conway Hotel, Badger Printing Co., Wolter Implement and Auto Co., Superior Knitting Works, J. E. Voigt Drug store, Sylvester and Nielsen, Heckert Shoe Co., A. Galpin's Sons Hardware Co., Appleton Sport Shop, Petersen and Bauer Printing Co., and Sniders restaurant.

Several of the schools which plan to take part in the meet have sent in their entry lists, among them Appleton high with between 30 and 35 men, and West Green Bay with 25. The others are expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

ROD AND REEL

M. J. V. FOSE

SELECTING A GOOD ROD

Before attempting to select a rod the angler should decide what lures he intends to cast. If they are of the light variety weighing up to ½ ounce, such as spinners, pork strips, chunks, or the "baby" lures, as they are sometimes named, then a lightweight split bamboo rod which is quite flexible and weighs under 5½ ounces should be used. On the other hand, if the angler intends to use "Dowagiacs," frogs, or the heavier variety of lures, then a stiffer and somewhat heavier rod should be selected in order to "stand the gaff" or the rod will take a set in a short time. Never use a lightweight flexible rod for "tossing" heavy lures as they are bound to ruin it.

The proper length? That is up to the angler. Some prefer the short rods while others prefer the long ones. Personally my experience has been that a short 4½ or 5-foot rod is better for the heavy lures while the 5½ to 6 foot rod will give excellent service if the lighter lures are used. For the novice who wants an all around rod I would suggest one of 5½ feet and weighing around 5½ to 6 ounces.

Shall it be one, two or three piece? Here I would like to say that the present trend is toward a rod without ferrules—that is the one piece rod. However, as the one-piece rod is a "Jonah" to lug on trips I would suggest the angler choose "the short butt, long tip rod which was originated by our old friend, James Heddon. A rod of this calibre has almost as good action as the one-piece and is more convenient. A rod recently appeared on the market which is a masterpiece. It has an ivory old reel seat, and the bamboo has been treated before varnishing. It is an excellent tool and can be depended upon to give service because the makers of these rods have been in business for years and will stand back of them to the limit, unless they are abused.

In selecting a rod, go over it carefully and see that all the joints have been well glued and that the knots are not bunched together as this makes a fatal spot on any rod. Whip it back and forth, then hold it to your eye and notice if it has come back to its original straightness. If not lay it aside and look farther. Do not select a rod for its beauty, although some rods are beautiful and have the stamina too and one will have to use discretion in selecting the "one rod." Pay enough for it so the manufacturer can put in the workmanship and you will be repaid twofold in service season after season, if a little care is taken of the "best tool an angler can buy"—a "pet rod."

Mack Is Ready To Part With Perkins, Claim

New York—Dame Rumor has it that Connie Mack is not at all satisfied with his catching, despite the fact that in Cy Perkins he has a receiver reputed to be one of the best in the business.

Perkins no longer catches Rommel, the pitching ace of Mack's staff. Aside from Rommel none of Mack's pitchers coupled with Perkins has shown anything.

Two years ago Perkins was the most talked off backstop in the country. During the past two years his work has not measured up to the standard he established to win rank as a star.

Several American League clubs could use a catcher of Perkins' type, and if they have enough to offer in return, might be able to do business with Mack.

Reds Lead National League As Champions Break Winning Pace

Wayland Dean Driven Out of Box After Cardinals Develop Ability to Connect with His Offerings.

Cincinnati, leading the National league Tuesday after trailing the Giants for three weeks, breezed past the faltering champions with a speed that may land the rushing Reds a lap in front before their sprint ends.

Scoring only nine more runs than their opponents in the last 17 games, the Ohioans won 12 of the contests, averaging less than a one-run edge in each battle.

Fifth in team batting with an average of .272 with only three regulars hitting .300, andthe highest of these .333, the Reds won 12 of 16 games from Pittsburg and Chicago after hard fighting.

A five-day interruption by rain last week held the men in momentary check but Monday's convincing 4 to 1 victory over Philadelphia indicated that the spirited team was off on another run to which the league leadership should add a new inspiration.

Contrasted with the snap tight activities of Jack Hendrick's team, the play of the Giants has been almost sad. Monday's defeat at St. Louis was the fifth to which the champions submitted from cellar nine within the last six days. Ragged infielding, plentiful but ineffective hitting, and the collapse of youthful pitching hopes has replaced the even balance which sent the three time pennant winners away to a strong start.

Wayland Dean whose early starts caused observers to compare him to Christy Mathewson, was driven out of the box after the Cardinals developed the same ability to hit him for home-runs that the Robins and Phillies had previously shown. Young and Southworth debated as Bottomley stretched a three bagger into a homer. The Giants made 11 hits off three pitchers and mixed one of these with a sacrifice fly and five walks in one inning, but could only score three runs throughout the game.

Falling prey to tail enders and playing loose ball, with Pittsburg, Chicago and Cincinnati yet to face, the immediate future of the Giants looms dark. Brooklyn won from Chicago, 7 to 3, behind Vance's steady pitching and is only three games away from McGraw's team.

All American league games Monday were cancelled by rain as was the Boston-Pittsburg battle in the National.

J. Q. Stubb Gallagher, first base man who made the training trip with the Chicago White Sox and was sent to Pittsfield, has been turned over to Montreal in the Canadian league.

Catcher "Rowdy" Elliott formerly of the National league, was given his unconditional release by the Toledo American Association club.

Moses Solomon formerly of the Giants, has been sent to the Bridgeport club of the eastern league by Toledo.

Toledo also released Pitcher Bob Shanklin to Montreal and Outfielder Paul Danielly to Galveston, under option. The Washington Senators have returned Pitcher Fred Wingfield to the Chattanooga Southern association club.

Frank Gibson, holdout catcher of the Boston Braves, has come to terms and will join the club at Cincinnati in a day or two.

Tom Needham, veteran catcher of the Chicago Cubs in the days when Evers covered second base for the club, has been added to the roster of coaches of the White Sox under Manager Evers and will assist "Ed" Walsh with the young pitchers.

Pete Donohue, star twirler of the Cincinnati Reds lost control after pitching 39 consecutive innings without walking a man. When Pete "broke" he issued three passes to the Phillies.

Zach Wheat, veteran of the Dodgers, continued to set a dizzy pace for hitting honors of the National league with Rogers Hornsby, Cardinal star, and last year's champion runner up. With Hornsby's return to the lineup, Wheat has put on more steam. He smashed out two doubles in four times at bat, while Hornsby poled a brace of singles in four times up.

Charley Hollocher, star shortstop of the Subs who made his first official appearance in the lineup when he went in as a pinch hitter for Pitcher Aldridge, is expected to take his old position when the Cubs face the Giants in Chicago Wednesday.

NEW LONDON SHUTS OUT KAUKAUNA COMERS, 13-0

New London Boosters of the Fox River Valley baseball league Sunday afternoon shut out the Kaukauna Comers, 13 to 0, in an extremely one-sided game played at Kaukauna. Mundinger, Goetchel and Krueger alternated on the mound for New London and allowed but three hits, while the Kaukauna hurlers were hit for 13. Roloff was at the receiving end for New London.

TWENTIETH SEASON MAY CLOSE COBB'S CAREER AS REGULAR

Veteran Probably Will Play in Utility Roles at End of 1924 Season

Detroit — While no definite announcement has been made, it is understood that this year will be Cobb's last season as a regular player.

Cobb came to the Detroit club in 1907. At the close of this season he will have finished his twentieth season as one of the shining lights of the American League.

Last season Cobb slowed up considerable. It was generally noticeable. Cobb, himself, admitted that he no longer was a speed merchant on the paths. He lost at least 20 hits last year he would have easily beaten out 10 years ago.

Cobb is proud of his great record, as well he should be. He frankly admits that he never wants his play to slip so much that the crowd starts to boo him. He recalls that Lajoie and Wagner suffered such a fate in the final stages of their big league career.

"Nothing like that for me," says Cobb. "When I see that I am a has-been, it's a seat on the bench for me."

Cobb says the thought of permanently retiring is still some years distant, but instead of a regular he will probably play utility roles at the close of 1924.
